A Welching Bloc.
Your Silver Dollar.
Rules for Wives.
Two Governments.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IT IS REPORTED seriously that England, France and Italy have united to "bar the payments of debts" to us. They are said to have arranged what might be called a "welching bloc," as though three bookmakers should agree not to pay what they owe, hoping to make the welching less unpleasant by making it co-operative.

THIS WELCHING plan by European friends that came hat in hand, tears in eyes, begging for help in the war, may hurt them more than us. We can afford a ten billion dollar welching process if we must, whereas, on future occasions the welchers may discover that deliberately swindling a good lender, with plenty more that might be lent, is not profitable.

Also, there are several ways of killing a cat, and several ways of recovering a debt. Some day a forceful American government may reveal some methods of debt recovery to the "welching bloc."

MR. MILLS, Secretary of the Treasury, issues the first $1 bills with his signature. Like other $1 bills, they raise an important question.

Take a one dollar bill and read on it in large type, under a picture of George Washington, "ONE SILVER DOLLAR."

Nothing is said about gold, it's a SILVER dollar.

Yet that silver dollar with Uncle Sam's name on it is worth one hundred cents, whereas GOVERNMENT GOLD BONDS sell below par.

A GOVERNMENT bond is the government's promise to pay you the face value of the bond IN GOLD of the present standard of weight and fineness.

Your dollar bill is nothing but silver plus the country's name, and it is worth more than the bond.

To the average citizen who knows no more about finance than the average high financier, this indicates that Uncle Sam, if he chose, could finance his own affairs without going to the bankers that he has created, saying:

"Won't you please lend me a little money at high interest rates."

IN ENGLAND, a gentleman was accused of enticing away another man's wife. The husband sued. The learned Justice McCardie decided against him, saying, among other things:

"I must tell you that a woman's body does not belong to the husband. It is her own property; it is not his. A woman can leave her husband by her own free will. She may choose her own occupation. She may take her own political party.

"She may profess her own separate religious creed. She may decide whether she will bear children or not, and she may decide when each child shall be born. The married woman of this country has gained her freedom."

THAT SOUNDS radical for an English justice.

Another learned British jurist, Sir Thomas Edward Scrutton, reversed the opinion of Justice McCardie, who is a bachelor, saying:

"If there is to be a discussion of the proper relations of husband and wife I think it had better come from judges who have more than a theoretical knowledge of such relations."

THE OPINION that a British wife owns and can control herself is startling, in England, where until recently there had been no change in the ruling that said that a husband might beat his wife providing he used a stick no bigger around than his thumb.

HERE IN AMERICA we have what might be called a conservative government by high finance and big corporations. Nobody will deny that they represent the real power in the United States. About one out of six of our workers is idle. And we moan, naturally.

In New Zealand they have exactly the other kind of a government, "run for the people, by the workmen," a pretty good imitation of "proletarian" government, without the Soviet trimmings. And in New Zealand TWO OUT OF THREE WORKMEN ARE IDLE. The workers are rebelling against their government, and are in miserable condition. In a depression any kind of government may be the wrong kind.

MR. CORBETT, chief architect of the 1933 Chicago world's fair, and one of the architects of the Rockefeller center, says the country will soon be dotted with small houses, sold ready-made, like suits of clothes, for "nomadic America." The condition may come so soon as to surprise Mr. Corbett, for production of such houses is now in excellent, competent hands.

An American family wants three things: a house to live in, a car to drive in, a garage for the car. Ninety-nine out of a hundred Americans would rather have a two-room house and a four, six or an eight-cylinder car than a 20-room house and no automobile.

WALL STREET was sad again yesterday, prices sagging. That part of the world reminds you of the gentleman whose wife persuaded him to take castor oil, promising him a little rye whisky after it. He was fond of rye whisky and yielded, but from that time on he could never touch it, because it reminded him of castor oil.

Some citizens are fond of stock speculation, but can't bear

SPECTATORS FLEE AS TOWER FALLS

Several Persons Injured; Loss to Exceed $250,000; Other Towns Give Aid

By LEE CURRAN
Staff Correspondent.

BEAVER, Pa., May 26.—Fire, starting in the roof of the Beaver County Courthouse shortly before 10 a. m. today, swept rapidly through the dry timbers of the 55-year-old landmark, and by noon had left it in flaming ruins.

Eight fire departments from Beaver Valley communities battled vainly to check the spread of the flames, which are believed to have started from a painter's blow torch, which ignited a bird's nest.

HIGH TOWER COLLAPSES

State police aided Beaver peace officers in handling the huge crowd which soon gathered, and succeeded in getting the spectators just out of range when the clock tower, rising two stories over the rest of the building, collapsed just before 11 o'clock.

When the flames finally were brought under control at 11:45 only the walls were left standing.

County Commissioner Howard Hunter said that the damage would exceed $250,000 and that $500,000 would be needed for rebuilding. The loss is covered by insurance policies totaling $460,000.

Hoseman Lou Gallagher, of the Freedom fire department, was severely cut on the face and head when a hose he was handling broke under pressure. He was taken to Providence Hospital.

Hoseman Hedman Raeder, of the Bridgewater department, had his back severely sprained when he fell down a stairway while groping through the dense smoke.

Hoseman Francis Ewing, of Rochester, was cut on the head by falling debris.

FIREMEN OVERCOME

A dozen firemen and a painter were overcome by smoke and carried down ladders from the roof to the ground five stories below.

Three of the firemen, Dallas Beaner, Bernard Wall and Lawrence Lees, all of the Beaver fire department, and the unidentified painter, were so seriously affected that they were taken to doctors' offices for treatment.

Beaner graphically described how he, Wall and Lees were trapped on the fourth floor. He said:

"We were the first firemen in the building and went to the fourth floor. We were trapped in a small room when a door blew shut. Immediately afterward debris falling from the ceiling blocked the door. Smoke poured into the room in dense clouds. Finally our cries were heard. We were taken by firemen to the tower and then to the street."

Judge F. E. Reader and Fire Chief D. A. Moore had a narrow escape from serious injury when debris crashed beside them. Reader was attempting to take records from his chambers; Moore directing firemen near the tower.

Fire companies were summoned from Beaver Falls, Monaca, New Brighton, Freedom, Bridgewater, Rochester and Rochester Township.

OUSTER PLOT CHARGED BY WALKER

'Somebody After Me,' Says Mayor in Angry Outburst; Explains Stock Profits

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—Angrily charging that his examination before the Hofstadter legislative committee was a preliminary to seeking his removal from office, Mayor James J. Walker today continued his recital of "countless kindnesses" shown him as Mayor of the country's metropolis.

Today's session, the second at which the Mayor has occupied the witness chair, began with pleasantries and an exchange of courtesies between Walker and Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the committee which for 14 months has been delving into the city's affairs.

ANGRY OUTBURST

But acrimony soon burst out and the Mayor gave way to the angriest outburst yet witnessed in the chamber which has been the scene of countless verbal implications.

After saying that he recognized the antagonistic attitude of Seabury, the Mayor exclaimed:

"I'm here as a witness, but it begins to look as though somebody were after my life.

"It is apparent to me that this is just an examination before trial—that it is preliminary to preferring charges with the Governor asking for my removal."

Seabury became just as angry as the Mayor and denounced the latter's statement as "a cheap political stump speech."

During the discussion Assemblyman Irving Steingut charged the committee had spent all but $87,000 of $750,000 appropriated to the committee. He shouted:

"All of this money has been spent by counsel to remove this man from office, and he can't do it."

Seabury said:

"That statement is unqualifiedly false, and the Assemblyman knew it was when he made it."

BROKERAGE ACCOUNT

The session began with renewed reference to a joint brokerage account the Mayor testified yesterday he had with Paul Block, publisher. The Mayor put nothing

President Hoover vs. Secretary Hoover

PRESIDENT HOOVER definitely opposes the bond issue for public works proposed by John N. Garner, speaker of the Democratic House, and by other members of the House of Representatives, and also proposed by Senators La Follette and Brookhart and other members of the Republican Senate.

Mr. Hoover's opposition to a bond issue, to help give employment on public construction to the eight million American citizens now walking the streets in search of work, is important because of Mr. Hoover's high position.

Otherwise the opinion of a man who, ever since the depression started, has recommended everything wrong, prophesied everything wrong, and done everything wrong, would not be given the slightest consideration, either by Congress or the public.

IT IS DIFFICULT, however, to understand how it is possible for any man who has the interests of his country at heart to oppose deliberately a plan of public works which would not only largely relieve the distress of the eight million unemployed and their families, but which would immediately cause liberal spending of wages at the stores; and so create orders from the factories, and so revive demands for raw materials from the farms and the mines, and so stimulate activity and provide jobs in all lines of business.

The use of the credit of the country, as it was used in war time to relieve existing cruel conditions, and to start business on its way back to recovery, is so natural and proper and obvious, that the Hearst papers refuse to believe that President Hoover himself is responsible for the letter opposing this use which was issued over his name.

The Hearst papers believe that this document must have actually been inspired by Messrs. Morgan and Company or by some others of the Wall street bankers; first, because it perfectly expresses the viewpoint of Wall street on a national financial program; and second, because it is diametrically opposed to Mr. Hoover's ideas and opinions as formerly and authoritatively expressed.

THE WALL STREET bankers ardently and selfishly believe that the Reconstruction Corporation should be the governmental agency to operate in the present financial stringency, and that this corporation should confine itself chiefly to financing the financiers, and relieving distress in Wall street.

The bankers have no objection whatever to billions of dollars being raised by the government to benefit the banks, but they object strenuously to any money being raised by the government to benefit business generally or to relieve the pitiful distress of the eight million unemployed.

The bankers say, "Let private charity take care of the unemployed;" and President Hoover has echoed that calloused sentiment.

The bankers say that the first duty of government is to relieve the banks and the banks will then pass on the relief to business generally.

But hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid by the government into the banks and the banks have in no way relieved general business.

LIQUIDITY HAS become an obsession on the part of the banks, and to remain liquid they have closed out debtors on every side and wrecked enterprises and ruined individuals merely to call loans and pile up bullion in their vaults, in order to be able to meet the very crisis which they themselves are precipitating.

The government should not pour any more money into the apparently bottomless sink holes of the Wall street banks.

It has become evident to every thinking person not only that the banks do not care anything about the general welfare of the country, but that they do not KNOW ANYTHING about the general welfare of the country.

The government should give up the futile policy of trying to restore the general prosperity of the country through the banks, and come to a sane realization that the only way the banks can be bene-

SCORES SEE ATTACK ON CHILDREN

Crazed Man Slashes Child, Turns on Others Before Captured by Policeman

CLEVELAND, May 26.—(AP.)—A knife-wielder who called himself "Mystery Jake" turned on a crowd of school children today, stabbed one girl to death and perhaps fatally injured two more.

He was captured a few moments later by Patrolman Charles Mischely, on school traffic duty nearby, as hundreds of persons on their way to work gathered and threatened mob action.

SOUGHT TO KILL

The man incoherently muttered that he "had a call to kill millions" and called on the patrolman to "Kill me, kill me. I have not killed enough."

The dead girl was Elaine Mackin, 8. The critically injured were Lena de Sand, 12, and Rose Marie Parker, 8. They were on their way to St. Cecelia's School at East One Hundred and Fifty-first street and Kinsman road, near where the attack occurred.

The man, who gave his name as Jake Gordon, 40, suddenly plunged into a group of children, brandishing a knife, and without warning slashed the throat of the Parker girl, witnesses said. Then he turned wildly on the other two girls and cut them about the throat.

SCREAMS WARN OFFICER

Screams of the children attracted Patrolman Mischely, who pulled his gun and caught the man in the middle of the street. The attacker submitted to arrest without further violence.

Police said the man talked insanely and boasted that he was "Mystery Jake" with some illusion that he was to kill children. He told them he had not spoken to anyone for a year and a half.

DIES WATCHING FILM THRILLER

As "Murder by the Clock" reeled off to one of its tensest scenes in a Fifth avenue motion picture house today, Mrs. Lillian Mitchell, 56, of 2434 Brownsville road, Carrick, slumped in her seat and died in a few minutes.

George W. Mitchell, the woman's husband, said his wife became visibly agitated as the picture unfolded and shortly after noon collapsed. He said she had suffered two strokes previously, and he believed it was paralysis that caused her death.

Carried into the women's room of the theater, Mrs. Mitchell was pronounced dead by the ambulance surgeon of South Side hospital.

Mitchell said his wife left two children by a former marriage.

Gov. Roosevelt Mum On Walker Testimony

NEW YORK, May 26.—(INS.)—Tanned and apparently in the best of health, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned today from Warm Springs, Ga. The Governor declined to discuss politics and what he thought of the testimony of Mayor James J. Walker before the Hofstadter investigating committee, other than to say:

"The country will be better off with a Democratic administration."

Court Gives Divorce To Helen Worthing

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—(INS.)—Helen Lee Worthing, former Follies beauty, today had divorced Dr. Eugene C. Nelson, Negro physician. She testified he kept loaded pistols in their home, was jealous, and once had driven her in negligee from the house.

Miss Worthing was awarded alimony of $400 a month for four years.

Quick Relief Urged At Pinchot Parley

Leaders from Many Counties Tell of Jobless Distress

HARRISBURG, May 26.—(AP.)—A conference of welfare workers on unemployment relief needs and legislation in Pennsylvania was conducted today in Gov. Pinchot's reception room.

Topics listed for discussion were measures which an extra session of the Legislature could enact, the extent of suffering from unemployment in various sections, state resources now available for relief and how long they will last.

Representatives of state-aided hospitals and universities also were expected to appear to protest the recent ruling of Attorney General Schnader curtailing their appropriation by 24 per cent for this biennium. They were expected to ask for relief through additional appropriations at a special session of the Legislature.

ACTION HELD VITAL

Gov. Pinchot opened the conference with the hope that it would bring "good results."

The Rev. James R. Cox, Pittsburgh, said something must be done because "it is apparent that the national government will do nothing."

He said his followers in

Britain's Queen Marks Birthday

LONDON, May 26.—(AP.)—Queen Mary celebrated her 65th birthday today. A salute of 21 guns in Hyde Park was the only formal ceremony authorized. The royal servants at the palace, according to an old custom, drank the Queen's health in champagne furnished by the King.

THE PROBLEM

EMPLOYMENT here in April was 19.7 per cent below the corresponding period last year, according to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh.

REPORT CURTIS INDICTED

FLEMINGTON, N. J., May 26.—(AP.)—The Hunterdon County grand jury considered the case of John Hughes Curtis, confessed hoaxer of the Lindbergh case, for two hours and five minutes today, and when it adjourned there were unofficial reports that an indictment had been voted.

One indication that a true bill had been voted was seen in a statement of Prosecutor Anthony Hauck that, if an indictment was voted, he expected to call about 10 witnesses to support his case, including three police officials who testified today, and Col. Lindbergh. The prosecutor also indicated that he might seek to call Admiral Guy Burrage and Dean Dobson-Peacock, of Norfolk, Va., associates of Curtis in his negotiations.

BECKERT, Mass., May 26.—(AP.)—Dr. J. F. (Jafsie) Condon, retired educator and Lindbergh ransom negotiator, said today at the summer cottage of Walter C. Goodwin that several clues that may result in promising developments in the search for the Lindbergh baby murderers were contained in letters and telegrams he has received since he came here Monday, ostensibly in search of rest and to avoid publicity. He declined to state the nature of the clues or whence the messages came.

COUNTY LEADERS URGE SPEEDY RELIEF AT STATE PARLEY

GROWING CRISIS DESCRIBED TO GOVERNOR

Father Cox Among Speakers Terming Action for Aid Of Penna. Jobless Vital

"Shantytown" could and would take over Pittsburgh in 24 hours, and he predicted a revolution in America if another winter passes without adequate relief.

He charged that the multi-millionaire class in America is preventing President Hoover and Congress from passing federal relief measures. He said:

"The country is going to the which, as a clergyman, I do not like to mention."

He concluded by attacking the Legislature and politicians for the failure of the last special session.

URGES INCOME TAX

John A. Phillips, president of the State Federation of Labor, said, "We are in an extraordinary situation" and "we must take extraordinary measures to meet it." He urged adoption of a state income tax measure. He said commodities such as gasoline should not be taxed.

Charles A. Rotherwel of Altoona, said Altoona's funds are gone and the city has reached the end of its borrowing power.

Eighty-five per cent of the Talbot money is being given "as a dole," he said. Men he thought should work for their relief.

John L. Stewart, Washington, said the Talbot money will carry Washington County until December or January and that after that time outside aid will be required. Industrial firms formerly giving relief have stopped since the Talbot appropriations became available. In the last two weeks, he said, the increase in unemployment in the county was $1,500.

URGES CO-OPERATION

D. A. Sweeney, Westmoreland County, declared poor directors are not co-operating with the relief agencies as well as in some other counties. If that situation is not changed, he said, some of the relief agencies will be closed.

H. M. Willis, Erie, said unemployment has increased in the last four months, community chest funds are being exhausted and poor board funds are being rapidly depleted.

The borrowing and taxing limit of the county has almost been reached, and Erie County's sole hope, he said, lies in a special session devoid of politics and delay.

Horatio G. Lloyd, chairman of the Lloyd committee in Philadelphia, said there is now comparatively little suffering in that city. He said little money can be raised from the public for relief and that he does not know where additional money can be procured after the Talbot funds are exhausted.

JOBLESS INCREASE

He suggested funds from a special session of the Legislature to provide $1,500,000 a month so long as the depression continues. He said he sees no "let up" in the depression.

In a statement read, Lloyd says unemployment is now at a higher point in Philadelphia than at any time in the depression. Estimates made by the industrial research department of the University of Pennsylvania place the figure as of April 15 at 323,000, he said, adding:

"This is 25,000 more persons out of work than the estimates for March 15, and 84,000 more than in December. Thirty-six three per cent of the working population are wholly unemployed. In addition, 230,000 are believed to be on part time."

Sherwood Kingsley, of the Philadelphia Welfare Federation, said the Talbot fund for Philadelphia will cost the Philadelphia funds $1,250,000. The Philadelphia hospitals need more money, he said. He described the Philadelphia Relief situation as "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

He said that there is no hope for Philadelphia after the Lloyd committee's resources are exhausted.

John Reed, Oil City, said community chest funds are exhausted and aid must be provided from some other source, city, county or state.

BLAMES TALBOT ACT

John M. Smith, president of the Association of Pennsylvania Hospitals, Philadelphia, said hospitals are sympathetic with unemployment relief because they are part of it. The curtailment of state funds to 162 state-aided hospitals, he continued, is so serious that many of the institutions will close if the cut is not restored. The proposed decrease would mean that hospitals are providing one-fifth of the $10,000,000 Talbot act funds.

Gov. Pinchot said the money was taken from the hospitals by the Talbot act alone and not by the state or the Governor.

Attorney General William A. Schnader said the validating of the Talbot act necessitates the reduction in non-preferred appropriations because the money was not available for all appropriations. He declared the Legislature alone can repair this damage.

Other speakers described conditions in Scranton, Lancaster, Westtown, Reading and Harrisburg.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—Newspaper publishers who spoke at last night's conference with President Hoover were said at the White House today to have unanimously expressed approval of the setting up of committees in large cities similar to that under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young in New York, with the aim of helping business activity.

The President outlined a program for reconstruction committees of leading men.

Mr. Hoover stressed the necessity for co-operative action in this direction as a remedy for ailing business, it was said, and received from the publishers "a unanimous expression of entire sympathy with the program."

The sales tax was discussed, it was explained, including the possibility of using it as a possible lever for breaking the legislative jam of budget-balancing measures on Capitol Hill.

AMELIA MEETS AMY JOHNSON

LONDON, May 26.—(AP)—Amy Johnson, Great Britain's noted air woman, and Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, America's woman trans-Atlantic flier, met today for the first time.

Miss Johnson, accompanied by her fiance, J. A. Mollison, British long-distance flier, went to the American embassy at Prince's Gate to see Mrs. Putnam. They chatted for a long time and posed for photographers in the garden of the embassy.

Mollison, in view of the projected trans-Atlantic flight he plans to make soon, asked Mrs. Putnam questions on flying conditions over the ocean, especially regarding the formation of ice on the wings.

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP)—George Palmer Putnam, publisher, will sail on the Olympic tomorrow for Cherbourg, to join his flying wife, Amelia Earhart.

SCOTIA, N. Y., May 26.—(INS)—Two boys were dead today because they crawled into an ice box in an empty flat in this city. The door swung shut and they were suffocated to death while their parents were searching for them.

They were Robert Nicholson, 6, and his playmate, William Rice, Jr., 5.

Capone in New Plea To Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—Al Capone, the Chicago gangster now serving a sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary for evasion of federal income taxes, today asked the Supreme Court to reconsider its recent action refusing to review his case.

HOSPITAL HEADS SEE 'CALAMITY' IN STATE CUT

Suffering Facing Poor If Reduction Is Made to Be Cited in Plea to Pinchot

Pittsburgh hospital authorities today attacked the proposed slashing of state appropriations for hospitals and educational and welfare institutions on the ground it would be a calamity which easily could be avoided. As this sentiment was voiced, delegates began to assemble in Harrisburg for the Governor's conference on future relief measures.

Protests to the cut in state appropriations were made at a meeting of hospital heads here, with Miss Jessie Turnbull, Magee Hospital superintendent and president-elect of the Pennsylvania Hospital Association.

BLOW TO NEEDY

Miss Turnbull, discussing the virtual repudiation by the state of 24.16 per cent of its appropriations to hospitals and institutions, declared:

"This is not the time to economize at the expense of the health of the needy. The hospital conference of Pittsburgh cannot accept, without stating its position, the responsibility of acquiescing in any plan that will deprive thousands of unfortunate and destitute citizens of Pennsylvania of free medical treatment in the present emergency.

"Economies must be effected, but never for one moment should the hospitals of this great state be the first to suffer. There are too many other ways of reducing expenses."

It was indicated that the Pittsburgh delegation which will confer with Gov. Pinchot today would urge upon him the crisis that impends if the reduction goes through, and that an appeal be made to the Legislature to provide funds that would spare the hospitals and other groups.

HOSPITAL AFFECTED

One of the Pittsburgh institutions facing the most serious difficulties is the Tuberculosis League Hospital which has been operating, according to its superintendent, Miss Alice Stewart, almost entirely as a free institution. Of more than 150 patients being cared for in the hospital only 10 are able to pay a part of the cost of treatment, she said. By carefully pruning the budget and carrying minor economies to almost an extreme point the hospital would have been able to operate, Miss Stewart said, but she announced curtailment brings a new and apparently unsolvable problem.

Meanwhile, Gov. Pinchot was asked by the Allied Boards of Trade today to call a special session of the Legislature "for adequate relief with just methods of taxation, making the call general enough to permit expression of the Legislators' ideas." The request was made in a telegram dispatch following a trade board meeting last night.

Slain Dry Victim's Heirs Voted Cash

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—The Andrews bill for a $5,000 payment to heirs of Jacob D. Hanson, who was shot by Coast Guard men hunting liquor smugglers May 6, 1928, while driving from Lewiston to Niagara Falls, N. Y., was passed last night by the House and sent to the Senate.

Andrew W. Mellon, while Secretary of the Treasury, opposed passage of the bill, pointing out that Hanson failed to stop when ordered to and that the two Coast Guardsmen, Glen S. Jennings and Chris D. Dow, were found not guilty after being tried for the shooting in the United States Court for the Western District of New York.

BOTH HOUSES AGAINST BEER

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(INS)—The seventy-second Congress was on record today as unalterably opposed to the legalization of beer.

With the House recorded as opposed to 2.75 beer, the Senate voted the same way late yesterday, thus making both branches of Congress against modification of the Volstead act. The House vote Monday was 196 to 228 against beer. The Senate vote was 26 to 55 against beer.

Counting pairs, the anti-drys ran up 31 votes for beer in the Senate. They must gain 18 converts before they can command a majority of the upper branch of Congress.

The Senate vote came upon the amendment proposed by Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, to legalize 2.75 beer in order to tax it as a measure for raising revenue. He announced the tax would bring in $375,000,000 a year, permitting elimination or reduction of virtually every excise in the bill.

Drys' Illness Delays Repeal Bill Action

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP)—A Senate judiciary subcommittee session called today to consider proposals for prohibition repeal and modification was postponed due to failure to muster a quorum.

Absence of three prohibitionist members—Borah (Rep.), of Idaho; Walsh (Dem.) of Montana, and Dill (Dem.), of Washington—prevented the meeting.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—(AP)—Fourteen persons were injured at a circus last night when a frightened horse ran into the bleachers and knocked down two levels of seats.

BLOCK READY TO TESTIFY

NEW YORK, May 26.—(INS)—Paul Block, publisher, stated today that he would wait until he was called before the Hofstadter city investigating committee before making an explanation of the joint stock account which he and Mayor James J. Walker shared during 1927 and 1929.

During testimony of the Mayor before the committee, it was brought out that Mayor Walker made a profit of $246,692.76 from the account without investing any sum on his own part, Block said.

"Inasmuch as I may be called before the committee by Judge Samuel Seabury, I think it would be unfair to the judge for me to make any statement before such a hearing.

"If I am not called, I shall be glad to give a statement for the newspapers."

A friend of the publisher, however, said that Block had never asked for any favors from the Mayor and had never received any. He added:

"He never even received a police card."

The publisher's friend said that Block saw no reason in law or ethics why he might not give cash or stock gifts to whomever he pleased. His object in making the gift to the Mayor was that he wished Walker to have a little cash whenever he needed it, the friend added.

Block had long been an intimate friend of Mayor Walker.

into the account, but he took more than $246,000 out of it.

Seabury asked:

"What do you think was the reason for Mr. Block opening the account?"

The Mayor replied:

"I would prefer you ask Mr. Block."

He then launched into praise of Block, long his close friend.

Pursuing his questioning, Seabury asked:

"Have you been the beneficiary of any other funds or accounts since you've been Mayor?"

Walker replied:

"I've had countless kindnesses."

As Seabury pressed him for a more direct answer, he added:

"Not that I remember."

Mayor Walker acknowledged that he profited $10,000 by an investment made for him with no expense to the Mayor by Esmond O'Brien, a man not previously mentioned in the investigation.

And he told of a dinner in Atlantic City where he was told of a pool in Cosden Oil stock which it would cost him nothing to enter, "because the stock had gone up" since the pool was opened. Later he was informed the pool had been closed and he was given $26,000 in bonds.

BANKER AT DINNER

In his testimony about the Cosden stock pool, Mayor Walker said that the dinner at which the pool was first mentioned was attended by J. A. Sisto, banker, heavily interested in one of New York's large taxicab companies, but it was not Sisto who suggested his participation. The Mayor said:

"If there is any innuendo that Sisto tried to bribe me, I want to say that after the bonds were delivered, an ordinance was passed to increase the taxicab rates. I vetoed it. The Parmalee people (the taxi concern Sisto was interested in) at that time had 1,000 taxicabs on the streets of New York. If I had passed that bill the Parmalee company would have profited $1,000,000 in one year."

The Mayor denied that Russel T. Sherwood, missing witness, had ever been his representative, although he acknowledged that he had performed certain services for him and Mrs. Walker. He identified his signature on a receipt for a safe deposit box but said he did not hold the box jointly with Sherwood. He said the box was taken temporarily in his name to keep some papers of a Walker client while the Mayor was still practicing law.

At one point, when the questioning had turned to the taxicab situation in New York, the Mayor paused. Seabury asked:

"Are you being interrupted?"

Staring down at some one at the counsel table, Walker replied:

"I am being interrupted, and with the utmost discourtesy. I am conscious of a sneer on the face of an employe of the state of New York."

'VERY SENSITIVE'

Seabury said:

"You're very sensitive today."

The Mayor replied:

"I am not sensitive."

Seabury indicated he had been unable to find the Mayor's brother, Dr. William J. Walker, and asked where he was. Walker said:

"I don't know. I haven't seen him for five or six months."

He added:

"I'll be very glad to get in touch with him and have him communicate with you."

Questioned by Seabury about his business transactions since he became Mayor in 1926, Walker replied:

"There are no records. I had no business."

Seabury asked the Mayor if, in response to a subpena, he had produced "any other records" for the committee.

Walker replied:

"Most of the records asked for never existed."

Among the spectators today was J. Allen Smith, bus company agent, who bought a $10,000 letter of credit for the Mayor in 1927. Mayor Walker testified yesterday that he never heard of Smith and that the letter of credit was paid for by himself and members of the party.

PHILADELPHIAN NAMED U. P. MODERATOR AT BEAVER

VOTE ON UNION TO WAIT 1933 MEETING

Plans Offered for 75th Anniversary Celebration In Pittsburgh Next Year

BEAVER, Pa., May 26.—(AP.)—The Rev. Charles S. Cleland, of Philadelphia, was elected moderator of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, at the opening of the seventy-fourth general assembly last night.

Dr. Cleland is pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia and for more than 30 years has served as secretary of the board of foreign missions.

UNITY DISCUSSED

The report on Presbyterian unity was to be brought before the assembly today by the Rev. Dr. William J. Reid of Pittsburgh, chairman of the joint committee.

It will be referred to the committee on bills and overtures, which reports Saturday, but no vote will be taken until the sessions of 1933. At that time the conference will be held in Pittsburgh to celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the church.

The Presbyterian Church of the United States voted at its assembly in Denver to delay until next year a vote on the question of union with the United Presbyterians.

PLAN JUBILEE

Dr. R. A. Hutchison, chairman of a committee to plan for the denomination's seventy-fifth anniversary, recommended that the celebration be held in the Schenley district of Pittsburgh from June 28 to July 2, 1933.

Dr. Hutchison also proposed that the General Assembly, annual convention of the Women's General Missionary Society and the Young People's national convention be held at the same time.

The new moderator named 17 standing committees.

Tonight a foreign mission meeting will be held, with Dr. W. B. Anderson, corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, presiding.

Presbyterians Convene; Seven Candidates

DENVER, May 26.—(AP.)—With seven candidates in the field for moderator, the highest office in the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., a tangled political situation confronted the general assembly of the church, which convenes here today for its 144th annual meeting.

Dr. Charles W. Kerr, who has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Tulsa, Okla., for more than 33 years, was regarded as the leading candidate, but there was an undercurrent of opposition to him because of his position as a member of the general council of the church.

Some of the leaders among the commissioners viewed a movement of opposition to the general council as an element unfavorable to Kerr's candidacy. Overtures are on file, for action at the general assembly, for abolition of the general council, or for change in its organization.

Other candidates for moderator are Dr. David De Forest Burrell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Williamsport, Pa., since 1923; Dr. Dirk Lay, of Sacaton, Ariz., who has been a missionary pastor to the Pima Indians; Dr. Leon Decatur Young, pastor of the Abbey Presbyterian Church of Dallas, Tex.; Dr. William Hallock Johnson, of Lincoln University, Pa.; Dr. Alexander Alison, Jr., who has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Bridgeport, Conn., for 15 years, and Dr. Joseph A. Vance, of Detroit, president of the board of national missions.

The general council, with Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, moderator, presiding, was in session yesterday. Dr. Mudge was to open the general assembly this morning.

Kitty Hawk Honors Wrights' Flights

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., May 26.—(AP.)—Kitty Hawk, the North Carolina village where Orville Wright, with his brother, Wilbur, made their first glider and flew their first heavier-than-air machine, called again to Orville Wright today.

The pioneer flier was here for the seventh annual conference of the aircraft engineering research division of the national advisory committee for aeronautics. While at Kitty Hawk he will see the memorial to his brother and himself being erected on the site of their epochal flight.

Doctor Held in Fake On 'Trunk of Gold'

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP.)—A Washington widow's story of paying $19,128 to obtain a trunk in England containing $60,000,000 in gold has brought Dr. Frank L. Purdy into legal difficulties.

He was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Florence Means Kay, which charged larceny after trust. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fields Purdy, his wife, is being sought. The trunk was to be shipped to her, if she would defray the transportation expenses and the money was to be distributed for charitable purposes.

WIFE WHO SUED STAR 'ELOPES'

OAKLAND, Cal., May 26.—(AP.)—Police and cupid were all mixed up here today about what to do over the disappearance of Mrs. Marion Y. Read, who recently sued Claire Windsor, screen actress, for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

A telegraphic message from San Leandro indicated Mrs. Read had "eloped" with her husband, against whom she had filed suit for divorce. He is Alfred C. Read, Jr., Oakland and San Francisco broker.

The message delivered to Mrs. Read's mother read:

"We will be back in a few days. Please bear with us until we see you. Marion and Al."

Mrs. Read's father, James R. Young, insisted to police his daughter was being carried away by force and demanded the couple be apprehended and returned.

The alienation suit is still pending in Los Angeles and the divorce case here.

THE FILIPINOS, preparing for the day of "deliverance" from the United States, plan to buy out Japanese land owners. They say Japanese owners are willing to sell.

However, it might not be a good buy for the Filipinos, if they are really to be delivered from Uncle Sam's cruel grip.

If Uncle Sam should depart, the Japanese would come in, having good use for the Philippines, and the real estate purchases might not be profitable.

ASTRONOMERS AT Heidelberg Observatory, near the old castle, discovered a new tiny planet, nearest thing of importance to the earth, except the moon. It is "only" 4,370,000 miles distant, at certain times, and will be useful, making it possible to measure distances in the universe more accurately.

At present, according to Dr. Frost, blind astronomer at Yerkes Observatory, we do not know the exact distance between the earth and the sun within 50,000 miles. This tiny new planet will enable us to cut that uncertainty down to 10,000 miles.

'HYMIE'S' FATE WITH GIRL

The fate of Pittsburgh Hymie Martin, convicted killer, who goes on trial for a second time next week for the murder of a Cleveland ex-councilman, today appeared to hang on the answer to this question:

Is Myrtle McMurdy, 23, of Beaver Falls, ready to testify that it was not "Pittsburgh Hymie" but another man she saw entering the Cleveland apartment with William E. Potter, the former councilman, who was later found slain there?

Mrs. McMurdy's whereabouts today was disputed. She was reported to have talked with Martin's lawyer yesterday in Beaver Falls, but at the house where she lived it was said she had left three weeks ago.

Other witnesses at the trial, more than a year ago, testified they saw Martin entering the apartment with Potter.

$100,000 Extortion Plot Suspect Held

WHEELING, W. Va., May 26.—(AP.)—A man whose name police refuse to divulge is held in jail on charges of attempting to extort $100,000 from Louise Smith, 60, a widow of Pleasant Valley. Police revealed Mrs. Smith, who was recently left a large legacy, had received threatening letters. The man was arrested when he picked up a "dummy" package left on the spot, police said.

Constance Bennett's Salary Attached

HOLLYWOOD, May 26.—(INS.)—Two weeks' salary, $16,549, of Constance Bennett, film star, was under attachment today by deputy sheriffs pending disposition of a suit for $15,000 a theatrical agency filed against her, alleging the amount due for a contract they obtained for her.

SAYS DEMPSEY STOLE HIS GIRL

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—(INS.)—The movie and flatic world speculated today over whether a romance had developed between Jack Dempsey, former king of the heavyweights, and Lina Basquette, dark-eyed screen actress. Teddy Hayes, Jack's former trainer and ex-pal, thundered:

"Jack Dempsey stole my girl."

Hayes explained the incident occurred recently at a banquet at Dempsey's hotel here.

Dempsey, in San Francisco, indignantly denied Hayes' charge. He said:

"I wouldn't take anything from Hayes—least of all a girl. Lina's a mighty nice girl, but I've just hopped out of one marriage and I'm through with romance."

Hayes is an ally of Jack Kearns, Dempsey's former manager. He said:

"Jack made a big play for Lina at the banquet, and I haven't seen her since. Why did he have to pick her when there are 1,000,000 other girls who think he's a big shot?"

TROLLEY PASS ENDS JUNE 26

Formal notice of the abolishment of the weekly street car "pass" on June 26 was posted in cars of the Pittsburgh Railway Company today.

By the elimination of the pass, which permitted passengers to ride as often and as much as they desired in the first fare zone for $1.50, the company hopes to bolster its fast dwindling revenues.

Permission to abolish the pass was granted the railways company by the Traction Conference Board on Tuesday because it was learned it has benefited only a limited group of patrons — presumably large commercial interests.

In making its application to the conference board for the elimination of the pass, railways officials estimated that car revenues for this year will be $2,665,000 less than last year.

The weekly pass was adopted in 1925. Its effect has been studied by traction company officials of a number of other cities in the United States.

WOMEN IN RIOT TO HEAR TRIAL OF RECTOR

Several Trampled in Rush; Defendant Admits Posing With Girl in Shawl

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, May 26.—Several persons were trampled and bruised today when hundreds of women stormed Consistory Court in Westminister Hall for the afternoon session of the trial of the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson on charges of misconduct.

The women invaded the court after the noon recess, knocking down men and pushing police out of their way. Police reinforcements were summoned before order could be restored.

After 24 hours of cross-examination, the rector complained that he was ill and asked to be excused. The chancellor deferred his re-examination.

CONTRADICTS SELF

The day before his trial began Davidson was photographed with a 15-year-old girl wearing nothing but a shawl, he admitted in court today.

Contradicting himself on several occasions, the clergyman told a fantastic story of the photographic adventure, charging at one point that he was "trapped" by prosecution detectives.

Davidson informed the court toward the close of proceedings yesterday that the pictures were taken to be used in "advertising baby's clothing." There appeared to be some question over just what the girl was supposed to be wearing. The rector said:

"I presumed her bathing costume was still there. I was horrified when I saw the photograph."

BEWILDERS COUNSEL

Davidson admitted under questioning he was holding the girl's shawl when the photograph was taken. He said he did not realize the shawl "slipped" just before the shutter snapped, adding:

"I would be insane to have such a picture taken the day before my trial in a case like this."

Davidson bewildered counsel, first saying the picture was taken at the girl's house and then declaring it was photographed in a hotel room. He explained:

"The men who wanted the photographs said that my character was so pure nobody would think anything wrong. They suggested publishing the pictures to proclaim my innocence before the trial.

"I declined the proposition. When the pictures were developed later, I hoped the girl's mother would have me blocked out of them."

Davidson explained that five photographs in all were taken. He said:

"One prosecution detective offered to pay me £125 for one of them."

Jobless Man, 50, Hangs Self in Home

Theodore Pricer, 50, was found dead in the cellar of his home, 3923 Woolslayer street, today by his wife. His body was attached to a clothesline hanging from a rafter. At the morgue it was said he was despondent because of lack of work.

NEW EXCISE TAX BILL WRITTEN IN SENATE

Members Vote 'Nuisance' Levies; Burden Placed On Auto Industry Eased

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(AP.)—In a burst of speed that signalled the end of the tax controversy, the Senate today rewrote the entire excise tax schedule of the billion dollar revenue bill.

It placed new excise levies back into the measure so fast that at stages no one knew just what was going on. The head-long action was taken upon the recommendation of the finance committee.

SPEED NEW LEVIES

Obviously tired of the tax contest and willing to accept the new compromise offered by the finance committee which met early today, the Senate shouted in the new levies in rapid fire order.

The taxes on jewelry, cameras, firearms, matches, soft drinks, candy, boats, cosmetics and toilet preparations provided by the House measure were restored to the Senate bill, along with the other excise rates on automobiles and chewing gum previously agreed upon in the Senate.

All this was done to lighten the burden from automobiles resulting from refusal of the Senate to increase the rates on passenger cars and trucks from three and two per cent to four and three per cent, respectively.

ADMISSION TAX

The committee, in rewriting the schedules, proposed to make the exemption from the admissions tax apply on tickets of 30 and less. The compromise bill previously provided a tax on all tickets over 10 cents.

The soft drink tax was set at 1.25 cents a gallon on cereal beverages, 11 cents on unfermented grape juice; mineral waters, 2 cents a gallon; syrups for fountain use, 6 cents a gallon; syrups for bottling carbonated beverages, 5 cents a gallon. Pure apple cider was exempted.

The sales tax contest is impending but the advocates of this disputed levy do not see a majority for their cause.

Meanwhile, Rep. Martin, (Rep.), Mass., told newspapermen he had made a partial poll of the House Republicans and found that 20 who voted against the sales tax would aprove it.

The sales tax was defeated in the House 223 to 153, or by a majority of 70. It would require a change of 36 votes to pass it. Martin said:

"I believe that if the Senate adopts the sales tax the House will approve it now. Although I have not discussed it with Democratic opponents, I am informed that sentiment for the sales tax is growing on that side."

RAISE $602,818 IN HARRIS DRIVE

A total of $602,818 was raised during the campaign of the Family-Help-Family Plan of Sen. Frank J. Harris, it was announced at the final meeting of workers today in the William Penn Hotel. Approximately 70 per cent of the money has been paid and the amount expected to be raised within the next 10 days will be approximately $12,000.

Five Pittsburghmen will pay for the campaign expenses, which amount to $16,889, or 2 4-5 per cent of the amount received. More than 1,800 men and women participated in the drive. Sen. Harris made the report and turned it over to the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

James L. Stuart received the money in behalf of the association. Leo G. Griffith presided at the meeting.

Bogus Mail Plane SOS Calls Probed

BOSTON, May 26.—(AP.)—An investigation of the apparently false SOS messages which yesterday sent coast guard and other vessels speeding to assistance of the Steamship Europa's ship-to-shore mail plane yesterday, was begun at the East Boston airport today.

The plane reached Boston last night without incident and its crew of two denied ever having been in need of help or of having sent the messages which were picked up by several radio stations.

MINERS' UNION PARLEY SNAGS

JACKSONVILLE [illegible] (AP)—Failure of [illegible] ators to recognize [illegible] Mine Workers' union [illegible] the right of collective bargaining appeared today to be the chief stumbling block remaining in the path of efforts to end the strike in Ohio's coal field.

More than 2,000 striking miners voted at a meeting here late yesterday to reject Gov. White's program of settlement, embodying a new working agreement which previously was rejected by the operators.

Although the strike is an outgrowth of a wage reduction, a higher wage scale proposed by the Governor was opposed by the miners for technical reasons.

Actually lower wages would not necessarily be unacceptable to the miners, Percy Tetlow, a union representative, told the meeting if competitive conditions with the non-Ohio fields require the step and provided the miners are given a voice in conference on the competitive situation.

FEAST MARKED AT ARCHABBEY

By FATHER REGIS McCOY

LATROBE, Pa., May 26.—The Feast of Corpus Christi, body of Christ, commemorating the institution of the Blessed Eucharist, is being celebrated today at St. Vincent Archabbey with all the pomp and splendor of the liturgy of the Catholic Church.

At St. Vincent the feast is being celebrated with an outdoor procession and blessings on the college campus. Solemn high mass was sung this morning followed by the procession of the entire faculty, student body, community and visitors at St. Vincent to the college campus where benediction was given twice. Two altars were erected on the college diamond for the purpose. There are several thousand visitors.

Students vie with scholastics in decorating the outdoor altar. The concrete road around the college is covered with grass, and trees and shrubs adorn the sides forming a floor of greens over which the priests carry the Blessed Sacrament. The Very Rev. Prior Felix Fellner, O. S. B., was celebrant. Special processional music was furnished by the college band both during the procession and playing the accompaniments for the singing at the altars where upwards of 5,000 voices joined in the hymns.

The celebration this year marks the eighty-seventh time it has been held at the Latrobe college. The feast itself is about six centuries old, and was founded by an Augustinian nun in Belgium. Pope Urban IV was the official promoter of the feast.

President Hoover vs. Secretary Hoover

fited is through restoring the general prosperity of the country.

FURTHERMORE, THERE are other businesses to be relieved besides banks, and other individuals to be benefited besides bankers.

It is as if there were great public reservoirs of life-giving waters upon a hill, and great areas of parched public fields stretched out at the base of the hill; and the waters which were allowed to run from the public reservoirs merely disappeared into private sink holes, and never reached the parched fields.

Surely some competent and public-minded engineer could be discovered who would find a legal way and a right-of-way to lead the public waters from the hill directly down upon the parched fields, and so make the grass to grow and the flowers to bloom, and the fruits to flourish, and prosperity to come again on every man's land and in every man's home.

Surely one would think that a great engineer with all the power of the President of the United States would know how to do this saving deed; and as a matter of fact this great engineer does know how to do it, and did, before this depression came upon us, affix the signature of his approval to a report which told clearly and convincingly how to do it.

IN 1923 MR. HOOVER, then Secretary of Commerce, under President Harding, was chairman of a committee to investigate employment and public construction.

This committee went carefully and exhaustively into the subject, and finally made a logical and valuable report which Secretary Hoover, as chairman of the committee, indorsed unequivocally.

This report declared that in order to maintain employment at an equable level, public construction should be reduced in times of prosperity when employment was general, and EXPANDED IN TIMES OF DEPRESSION WHEN JOBS WERE SCARCE AND EMPLOYMENT DIFFICULT TO SECURE.

Following is a verbatim statement from the report:

"Holding back public works and private construction for periods of depression not only gives employment to large numbers of workers when it is most needed, but creates a demand for raw materials for construction which in turn stimulates other industries to employment. It maintains the buying power of those directly or indirectly employed; it creates a market for goods, and it enables the workers directly or indirectly employed to buy the products of other industries."

SECRETARY HOOVER personally said:

"No waste is greater than unemployment; no suffering is keener or more fraught with despair than that due to inability by those who wish to work to get jobs."

Surely, then, it must be obvious to every intelligent American citizen that President Hoover could not have been responsible for the recent letter to the American Society of Civil Engineers in which he so vehemently opposed the bond issue necessary to carry out the very plans and purposes which, as Secretary of Commerce, he had previously so earnestly advocated.

Surely someone other than Herbert Hoover must have inspired the letter issued last Monday which so utterly fails to convey Herbert Hoover's previously declared ideas and objectives, and which so completely fails to express the ideas and objectives of the Congress of the United States; and which so thoroughly fails to express the ideas and purposes of the people of the United States; and which only expresses accurately and unerringly the narrow ideas and selfish purposes of Wall street bankers, who so outrageously plucked and plundered the people of the United States during the speculative period of 1929, and who have done nothing, in spite of all the government gold which has been poured into their vaults, to relieve the national business prostration of 1932.

IT IS THE WALL STREET bankers who oppose the issue of bonds to relieve the unemployment they have so largely created.

It is Mr. Morgan himself who speaks over the radio so sympathetically, urging those who have been impoverished by the depression, to get together in block parties and HELP THEMSELVES.

And it is Mr. Morgan who cynically proceeds to help HIMSELF by taking twenty-three million dollars of government money from the Government Reconstruction Corporation, with the direct aid, intervention and INSISTENCE of the incumbent administration at Washington.

PERHAPS THE MELLONS and the Morgans and the big financial interests do nominate presidential candidates.

But when the candidate is elected by the people, and becomes the representative in public office of the whole people, his ideas and objectives would naturally, and must inevitably become, those of the people and not those of the Wall street bankers.

It is for these reasons that the Hearst papers refuse to believe that the letter to the American Society of Civil Engineers denying adequate aid to the unemployed, and refusing that stimulus to business, which such increase in purchasing power would create, was an actual expression of the genuine sentiment of the great engineer who once advocated that public works be expanded in periods of depression and retarded in periods of boom times, and who is now in a position, if sincere, to put these helpful theories into practice through his powerful influence as President of the United States.

Mitchell, Former Foe on Fishing Trip

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., May 26 (AP).—Gen. Billy Mitchell, former Air Corps chief, and Gen. Gerald Winship, who prosecuted Mitchell in a court-martial, went fishing together yesterday in Oregon Inlet.

With the pair was Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War at the time of the court-martial when Mitchell was convicted of insubordination in connection with his fight for a unified air service.

Congressman's Wife Loses $4,000 Gems

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP).—The loss of jewelry valued at $4,000 has been reported to police by Mrs. Charles B. Timberlake, wife of the Colorado representative.

She said the jewelry, two diamond rings and a wedding ring, was left in her automobile yesterday while she and a group of friends played golf. When she returned home the articles were missing.

Chicago Orchestra, Union Sign Scale

CHICAGO, May 26 (AP).—The Chicago Symphony Orchestra and its union musicians signed an agreement yesterday assuring another year of life for the famous organization.

When the season closed recently Conductor Frederick Stock indicated the Symphony Orchestra might be forced to disband because of financial loss. The Chicago Federation of Musicians agreed to $75 weekly salaries in place of previous $90 scale.

Scantily Clad Beauty Tests Chicago Ban

CHICAGO, May 26.—(INS).—Havina had herself arrested in a modern short bathing suit, pretty Dorothy Reeder today was ready to go before a judge and test the obsolete ordinance which says women must wear bathing costumes of 1910 design.

Upon her request Dorothy was booked for violating a law passed in 1910 which was included erroneously in the code printed last year.

Manchurian Troops Stage New Revolt

HARBIN, May 26.—(INS).—A garrison of the Manchukuo government troops on the Sungari River revolted today and put themselves out of communication with headquarters by cutting telegraph wires along the southern extension of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Meanwhile the intense spring rains were giving the forces of Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, located north of Hulun, time to recover from severe losses suffered at the hands of Japanese troops.

Reilly, Publisher, Ends Life With Gun

CHICAGO, May 26.—(AP).—Frank Kennicott Reilly, 67, whose company was the first to publish the early works of Harold Bell Wright, Edgar A. Guest and other now famous authors, ended his life with a bullet in his Gold Coast apartment yesterday.

There was no indication of a motive for the act in two farewell notes left on a table, but friends and relatives said he had been in poor health.

AUDIT REPORT GOES TO PARK

The County Commissioners have referred the latest report of Main & Co. on the test audit of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell's office to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Cash was handled in a loose manner in Mackrell's office, the report declares, and when quizzed concerning alteration of duplicate cash tickets a counter clerk admitted issuing the ticket but knew nothing of the alterations.

The office cashier, questioned concerning a $10 collection, said that he could not understand the item and immediately on May 18 made a deposit to cover it, the report states.

Several discrepancies in record of fees totalling $350 were found to be purely mechanical errors that could be avoided by exercise of more care, the report states.

After the report was read at yesterday's commissioners' meeting, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern moved that a copy be forwarded to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

NEWSIE SAVED FROM BLUFF

Harold Reilly, 13, a newsboy, of 2336 Carey way, South Side, today vowed he would not again use the steep hillside off the Boulevard of the Allies, at Pride street, as a short cut to take papers to the boatmen near Lock No. 1.

Harold's experience last night made him change his mind. For 30 minutes the boy was marooned on a ledge about 75 feet below the boulevard before firemen rescued him.

Realizing he was unable to proceed up or down, Reilly began to scream. Half an hour later his cries attracted a train crew, who notified police. Firemen from No. 5 Engine Company were summoned. They lowered a rope and brought Harold to the top.

The boy was none the worse for his experience, physicians at Mercy Hospital said. On his way home Harold said:

"Gee, but I'm lucky. I was afraid nobody would hear my cries."

One of the most unusual weddings of the June season will be that of Roberta Gilmour Rose, daughter of the J. R. Roses, of Sewickley, and Charles Radcliffe Murray, son of Mrs. John D. Murray and the late Mr. Murray, of Coraopolis Heights. Their marriage on June 11 will take place in the West Point Chapel, West Point.

Roberta and her mother will leave on Wednesday for West Point to attend all the affairs preceding commencement and, of course, commencement itself, for Mr. Murray is a member of the graduating class.

Mrs. Walter C. Miller will give a luncheon in the Edgeworth Club Saturday for Roberta.

At the card party yesterday afternoon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, the members of the younger set flocked around the fortune tellers to find out all about their past, present and future, and they consulted palmists, astrologers and even crystal gazers. The affair was a benefit for the Family Help Family plan.

Seen at Benefit

Selling cigarets were Margaret Brill, in brown and white print with a brown straw hat; Katharine Frazer and the Heckert twins. Francis and Margaret Francis wore a pistachio green knitted costume with a matching turban, and her sister chose a blue and silver Schiaparelli striped frock with a blue hat.

I saw Mrs. E. P. Mellon II in a cool summer frock of yellow rohanara with a petite jacket and matching hat, and selling cigarets was La-Salle Dorrance in beige and brown crepe with a brief jacket and a brown straw hat. Francis Preble Reed was there, too.

Summer Frocks

Others I noticed were Jane Allderdice and her sister, Mrs. Leonard S. Mudge, and Emily Frew, who was having her palm read, and Mrs. Rowland Erving, the chairman, who wore an afternoon gown of green crepe with a brown maline and straw hat. I saw Ruth Willock, too, and Laura Evans, who wore a red and white printed frock with a white patent leather hat.

Urges Adventure to Stop Stretches Of Imagination in Talk at County P. T. A. Meeting

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Lying may be "an abomination before the Lord," but to children it is an ever present help in time of trouble, the Rev. Basil Murray told the Allegheny County Council of Parents and Teachers yesterday at the annual business meeting held in the Food Craft Shop. A child needs reality and to create for himself a place in the sun he uses his imagination, which sometimes is a form of lying, the Rev. Murray went on. He declared the greatest thing a parent can do to overcome the lying habit is to give the child experience and adventure rather than things.

Reports of the fine child health work being done by the various associations in the county were given at the meeting. Mrs. D. N. Bulford spoke on program meeting, and the election of officers was held. Mrs. Robert E. Seldon was re-elected president for another two-year term, as was Mrs. John Winner to the second vice presidency. Other officers elected yesterday are Mrs. H. H. Aldrich, fourth vice president; Mrs. R. P. Forsberg, sixth vice president; Mrs. L. B. Stone, secretary, and H. B. Seemiller, treasurer.

BEIGE FULFILLS A PARISIAN PROPHECY

Sketched in Paris

(Copyright 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh
Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 26.—Paris never fails to find new ways to use beige. This year beige was early predicted as one of the outstanding colors of the season, and Paris women are finding this prophecy come true. Beige silks and beige woolens are in great demand in Paris shops, and French dressmaking houses report a large percentage of their clients ordering many beige clothes for spring and summer.

* * *

THIS YEAR'S beige fashions are characterized by an alliance with some other color. The first beige costumes of the year—beige coats with black accessories—are still fashionable. Beige with dark blue, beige with brown and beige with red are important color combinations seen everywhere in Paris. Beige with yellow and white, beige with yellow and black, and beige with brown and red are some of the more popular tricolor combinations.

* * *

VERA BOREA uses beige in quantity in her spring and summer shows. Some of her beach clothes are in yellowish beige, those for town wear lean toward the putty shade. Rosy beige is practically the only tone of its type not frequently seen right now.

* * *

THE PUTTY-COLORED dress in the sketch is one of the Borea frocks that has been made adapatable for both town and country wear. It is of wool crepe woven with a marked pebbly surface. Two-inch bands of the fabric mark a scarf-like line at the neck, and form a tie-belt; both loop through slashes in the dress, at the center-front.

Junior League Report Shows Art Project Gain

LOS ANGELES, May 26.—An increase in the number of projects undertaken by the New York arts and interests committee was noted by Mrs. John de Witt Peltz, of New York, director of the arts and interests bureau, at the twelfth annual conference of the Association of Junior Leagues being held here.

She said:

"In spite of economic conditions and the subsequent strain on philanthropic resources, cultural activities are still an active concern and the number of projects undertaken by the bureau throughout the country has actually increased during the past season."

Mrs. Charles Allen Lindley, editor of the Junior League Magazine, said poetry appearing in the magazine had shown a distinct improvement in quality.

Mrs. Lindley said she believed contributors to the magazine were endeavoring to find relief from economic problems through poetry. She said 4,597 articles, poems, pictures and fiction pieces had been submitted during the year.

New officers will be chosen by the league tomorrow.

CITY AUTO TOLL SHOWS DROP

Deaths from auto accidents in Pittsburgh proper for the four-week period ending May 14 totaled seven in comparison to 14 for a like period in 1931, a United States Chamber of Commerce report, released today, stated.

The city's death rate for the year ending May 14 dropped from 20.9 per 100,000 population in 1931 to 20.6 for the year ending May 14, 1932.

The report, which was made on a survey of 85 of the country's largest cities, showed a total of 564 deaths throughout the nation for the four-week period in 1932 against 688 in 1931.

SHETLAND AVE. WIDENING OFF

Objection by residents of Shetland avenue to paying $10 each to the cost of removing water lines resulted in Council yesterday deciding not to widen the thoroughfare from a 22 to a 25-foot street.

After the matter had been disposed of some of the objectors claimed they did not understand the subject, but it was too late. To have widened the thoroughfare would require reducing the width of the sidewalks 18 inches. The street will be resurfaced as originally planned and the Public Works Department was directed to start the work immediately.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist, Who Is His Own Worst Sec'y, Writes a Few Notes to Himself, the Bullhead!

Dear P. Y.: You're always complaining about not having a sec'y. . . . And not being able to find one who will also do your washing. . . . Well, a young lady came in today who said she'd be willing to work as cheaply as $90 a wk. providing she could dictate your stuff and not be compelled to read it. . . . She said that all nine of the men she worked for in the last three months would recommend her highly. . . . She also said she came from an old family of secys. that dated back to the Mayflower. . . . And they were never known to have made a single mistake. . . . Well, how do they account for her? . . . Sally O'Neil called. . . . She thought it was you on the phone at first and her voice was trembling soft and romantic. . . . I won't mention it to Velma. . . . Can I have your seats to the Jane Cowl opening that you refused me the other day? . . . Peter Arno rang. . . . He wants you to know that his Whoops Sisters will be seen in animated cartoons this fall, but the producers insisted that they adopt a dog.

Katherine Burke, the Ziggy beauty, was Prince of Waled from her horse in Central Park and seriously hurt. . . . There's a cable from Lou Holtz. . . . He's flying to Parisque from London. . . . Sort of seeing the world through the end of a cane. . . . Incidentally, Ed Graham, the better artist who just returned from Haiti, called. . . . He brought you a native stick as a gift from the press of the island. . . . Call Jimmy Walker's secy. . . . The Kingsley Browns (Wilma New) were twinned yesterdawning. . . . And Peggy ("Follies") Pearcy is becoming a Cleveland bride. . . . Did you get in touch with Johnny Weissmuller?

Al Altman, the MGM casting director, says he has laid off cigarets for two months. . . . And feels terrible. . . . Charles LeMaire and Kiviette, the costume designers, ended their 5-yr. feud and have gone in business together. . . . I did a little snooping on my own Fridawning and saw Peppy D'Albrew, the white maestro, and Eddie Reeves, the grocery scion, nearly come to blows at El Garron. . . . I got those stamps you needed, but the office boy said he needed them worse. . . . He enclosed them with a coupon to get a book on "How to Please Your Boss". . . . I told him that when you returned, he'd find out and had better send the publisher of the book a forwarding address at once.

Bill Schudt wants your life story for the publicity of his "Going to Press" hour on the Columbia chain June 1. . . . Leaving out all your jail sentences, I got the whole thing on the back of the office boy's calling card. . . . Many of the leading synagogues in Manhattan said Kaddish, the mourner's prayer for the dead, in memory of the Lindbergh baby. . . . You should Climb the Highest Mountain to spend an exciting fireside evening with Morrie (Pul. Prize Play) Ryskind's "The Diary of an Ex-President". . . . It was just pubbed by Milton-Balch, Inc. . . . Did you know that Ed Burgess, the pappy of Joan (Nicky Blair's sweet), is a famous detective-story writer and that he still remains one of Mr. Mulrooney's best sergeants? . . . With the new grind policy at the Palace, the stage hands have become ritzy and are sending the headline acts out on errands. . . . The cynical H. Fein wants to know if there is anything as sincere as a music publisher's handshake with an amateur song writer. . . . Not unless it's a sap who tells his employer he'll be glad to accept a cut to help the country out of the depression. . . . Incidentally, when are you going to give me my raise?

I canceled our airplane tickets to St. Louis. . . . Capt. Edwardo Labadores, the Cuban Lindy, has been burning up the LD wires from Ha-ha-havana to speak living nothings to Tamara, the Russian chanteuse. He's coming here in Oct. to offer marriage. . . . Vivian ("Show Boat") Keefer suffers aortaaches every time you mention Harold Haas, the Wall Streeter. . . . Get a slant of Edna Wallace Hopper and May Leslie taking their daily exercises in that midtown gym. . . . It wouldn't hurt that waist-line of yours if you joined them. . . . Those bath-reducing salts they sent you from Boston won't do you any good, because you have to take a bath to get the benefit. I wired W. H. Auburn, of Cleveland, your appreciation. . . . Bert Nevins, Western Unions an invitation to join his Dreamland Derby in which a grand prize will be offered to the fellow who snoozes the longest. . . . He says the mgrs. of the marathon are willing to grant you the handicap of your past four weeks of columning. . . . By the way, did you know that scientists say it is impossible for anyone to prove that he is awake?

Walter (Tony Mayfair) Marshall called from the Alimony Jail. . . . But the keeper cut him off in the middle of the conversation. . . . Why doesn't his remarried X release him? . . . Abe Lyman says he is not going to play at the Pavilion and wants you to cancel the date you two had. . . . A young blonde by the name of Frankee Maguire came in. . . . She is writing a book on juvenile delinquents and wanted to know if you could help her meet a few. . . . I told her you could help her a lot as that was the only kind of girls you know. . . . Joe Zelli cabled you and wants you to phone him in Paris tonight. . . . He said to reverse the charges. . . . That girl who wants to be your sec'y came in again. . . . She's willing to take $90-a-wk. and include your washing. . . . Someone told her you never change your clothes.

George Young, manager of the Alvin, departed this morning for his home in Philadelphia, accompanied by Mrs. Young. Mr. Young came to Pittsburgh about 10 months ago to become manager of the two local Shubert houses, the Alvin and the Pitt, the latter having since passed into other hands. In his contact with the theater-going public, Mr. Young revealed himself as a capable, urbane, courteous gentleman. Friends he made here will wish to see him return when the season reopens.

Hollywood Will Turn Out 300 Big Pictures, How Many Great?

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

The Fox moving picture concern is to put out 48 new pictures during the coming year. The Paramount concern is to make 65. Other companies are to produce similar batches. At least 300 big films are being made now every year—you can go to a picture theater every day in the week and see something different.

The most hopeful optimist may doubt whether all the master minds in Hollywood can produce 300 masterpieces in 52 weeks. Noel Coward is to turn out four plays. Zane Grey is counted on for four more, and a score of novels with feeble-minded heroines are to be offset by a score of adventure films with Tarzan or Scarface heroes.

Mr. Seibel

What is to be the result of this mass production in the movie world? It is too much to expect 300 masterpieces in 12 months. If the world finds three masterpieces in a century, that's a lucky century.

The fact is that the screen is drifting further and further from the stage. It is a story-telling device, not an art that will supplant the drama. Don't wonder that Mary Pickford is going in for sculpture, though you need have no expectation that she will prove a lady Phidias when she gets a chisel.

THE TWO GRAND HOTELS

We have had an opportunity in Pittsburgh during the last two months to see what Hollywood at its best can do in comparison with the stage at its average. We had the drama of "Grand Hotel" and we had the picture of "Grand Hotel."

There was a peculiar thing about the play produced by Shumlin and Moses. Not a single person in the cast was a star nor even a featured player, when the play made its big hit. Eugenie Leontovich became the star because the play gave her an opportunity to show she was fashioned of star-dust. There were four other actors who also rose to stellar heights, especially the obscure actor from a Yiddish company, Sam Jaffe, who was given the part of Kringelein.

Now, when Hollywood got hold of this drama, not a great drama by any means, they decided to make a superdrama out of it.

The way to make a superdrama is to spend a carload of money.

So they took the two Barrymores, John and Lionel, and they took Greta Garbo and Joan Crawford, and they took Wallace Beery and Lewis Stone—add them up and you have six stars!

And then they produced a picture which would please anybody but a London critic—and with all their stars the picture was not as good as the stage play without any.

BEST ACTORS NOT SO GOOD

Lionel Barrymore did the best acting in the picture, yet he was not as good as Sam Jaffe. Joan Crawford was better than Greta Garbo, but neither of them approached the breathing and vital impersonation of Madame Leontovich. Wallace Beery was fine, but no better than Dekker in the play.

Which proves that the expenditure of a vast sum in a superproduction may kill the drama if it is released too soon, but cannot take the place of the drama. The stage creates actors, and the screen unmakes them.

Where are the screen stars of five years ago, with few exceptions? Robert Mantell held his public for 40 years—Blanche Sweet has dissolved like a lump of sugar in a cup of tea.

FAME QUICKLY FADES

The fame of actors is evanescent enough. David Garrick is only a name and Edmund Kean only a reputation. But the people on the screen fade even faster—they are only shadows and echoes. That is why so many of them make "personal appearances" to convince their admirers that they really exist.

Perhaps this will help people to understand why Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, now our leading American actors, have declined to sell themselves body and soul to the movies. Perhaps they saw what has happened to John Barrymore. He has become a profile and the hero of a hundred trivial paragraphs.

The next play of the Lunts by the way, will be written by Noel Coward, and he will appear with them in the production, which is to take place next January. The new play will be called "Design for Living," which leaves ample room for guessing what it's about.

Meanwhile the movies are still annexing provinces of the stage. They are now filming "Once in a Lifetime," that satire on the movies which made such a hit. And they are telling a good story about the movie magnate who is producing the thing out in Universal City. "Of course, we'll have to take out the satire," he remarked with perfect seriousness. That would make "Once in a Lifetime" easy to film, because there would not be anything left.

"Cyrano De Bergerac" To Tour Again

Walter Hampden, who was tentatively listed to appear here as a spring attraction in his revival of "Cyrano De Bergerac," has decided to take the same play out on the road again in the fall, prompted to do so by the favorable reception it received this year when he took it out of the storehouse after the flop of his earlier effort, "The Admirable Crichton." Another of his plans for the future is a coast-to-coast tour in "Hamlet" and "Caponsacchi." He intends also to do "Ruy Blas," but not until after he has received a special translation, to be made for him by Brian Hooker, who did the same kind of service for him with "Cyrano."

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Character

I'VE ALWAYS liked characters. And you can take my word for the fact that Alabama fits into that category. His last name nobody knows, but there are those who say he comes from a fine southern family. He's about 35 today, I should say, and he's as thin as an election promise.

If you met Alabama at a house party you'd take him for a perfect gentleman. Which, indeed, he is—as far as manners are concerned. He has a soft smile and a softer drawl. He talks expertly on various subjects and those women who do not mind pasty complexions go for him in a big way. It's difficult to make them believe that he is one of America's most notorious confidence men, and that he has done time in plenty of our most select jails.

As a matter of fact, the first time I heard of Alabama was when he was doing time on a nearby island. It was shortly before Christmas, and all of the inmates were busily engaged in sending some sort of greeting to someone for whom they cared.

Alabama watched them for a while and then wandered over to a prisoner who had several cards in front of him.

"Kin Ah borrow one of yo' cards?" he asked. "Ah'd like to send a little message to mah folks down home."

The other prisoner said he was sorry but that he couldn't spare one. Alabama scratched his head with a skinny finger.

"Tell you what Ah'll do," he asserted. "Ah've got one last can of spaghetti down in mah cell. Ah'll trade it to yo' fo' one of those cards."

The prisoner agreed and the swap was made. Alabama sat himself down and addressed his card so that no one could see him. Still another inmate wandered over to him.

"Just saw what you did, Alabama," he chirped, "and I think it's pretty swell. There aren't many mugs in here who would swap their last can of spaghetti for a card to send to home folk."

Alabama snorted.

"Home folk, the devil!" he muttered. "Just sent that card to mahself. Ah ain't gonna let these bums have anything on me!" . . .

I met Alabama for the first time a few weeks ago and I sat with him for almost an hour. The man amused me a great deal, and his philosophies were little short of sensational. He told me, for example, that his brothers and sisters were all people of wealth and reputation. You'll pardon my sloppy attempt to imitate his drawl, but it's the best I can do under the circumstances.

"Yo' see, Mr. Hellinger," he stated, "Ah'm not a mean cuss. Take me apart and Ah don't think yo'll find a vicious bone in mah body. Ah'm jus' like my brothers and sisters 'cepting fo' this one fact. Ah'm always too tired to work fo' mah money."

In one respect the man is highly unusual. When a man has served as many prison terms as Alabama he usually resents the entire world. Not so with this character. With him it's a case of lift and let lift. He seems to bear no malice toward anyone.

As we talked, the conversation turned to corn liquor. How and why, I know not. But there it landed. And Alabama smiled.

"Brother," he chirped, "Ah suah do love that corn liquor. As long as Ah live Ah'm never gonna forget the time that Ah was doing a bit in a Southern chain gang. And Ah hope that, when Ah mention the chain gang, Ah do not offend yo' esthetic tastes."

"Not at all, Alabama," I told him. "Go ahead with your story."

"Well," he grinned, "after doing several odd chores around the camp, Ah managed to save enough to buy mahself a jug of corn from one of the moonshiners. Ah wasn't allowed to leave the camp at that time, so Ah had to make other arrangements.

"Through the usual prison grapevine, Ah told the bootlegger to leave the corn liquor behind a certain tree. Ah assured him that Ah would plant the money there befo' he arrived. So, unless somebody was wise, there was no chance fo' a slip-up."

"Everything went wrong," he went on. "Although Ah didn't know it, the keeper had been wise to all the arrangements right from the start."

"Tough luck," I observed stupidly. "Then you didn't drink the liquor, eh?"

"No, suh," he returned. "But that ain't the worst of it. What Ah've never been able to understand is why that keeper waited to shoot the jug right out of mah mouth!" . . .

Well, it seems that on this particular bit, Alabama forgot his corn whisky and behaved himself to the limit. As a result, he was rewarded by being made a trusty. And among his various duties was to drive into town and bring back some of the daily prison supplies.

"When yo're a trusty, Mr. Hellinger," he explains, "they trust you—but not too far. They take the ball from the prisoner's leg—but they make doggone sure to attach yo' to the wagon. And yo've then got as much chance of running away as yo' had before."

That infectious smile spread across his face.

"But Ah did have a lot of fun as a trusty," he mused, "in spite of being chained to that wagon. On the very first day Ah drove into town a young gal flirted with me. And Ah can tell you she was mighty cute. So yo' can bet Ah flirted back.

"The next day, there she was again. Ah began to look fo' her on the daily routine, and it wasn't long fore she had grown accustomed to coming out of her house and talking to me alongside of mah wagon. That's pretty swell when yo're nothing but a member of a chain gang.

"One day, just as Ah was driving by, she hailed me from her porch.

"'Hey, there, Alabama,' she cried in that lovely voice of hers, 'come on inside fo' a few minutes. Ah want yo' all to see how nice mah house is inside.'"

He stopped abruptly. I waited—but he failed to continue.

"Well," I asked impatiently, "what happened?"

He settled back in his chair and gazed dreamily at the ceiling.

"Mr. Hellinger," he sighed, "if Ah could have dragged that wagon through that door, Ah'd be married right now!"

Great character, Alabama. I've met few like him . . . .

Claude G. Bowers' Address, Columbo, Weeks Music On WCAE 'Magic Carpet'

Claude G. Bowers, noted author, who sounded the keynote of the last Democratic National Convention at Houston, Tex., in 1928, appears as guest speaker with Louis Sobol, Broadway columnist, during the cigaret dance hour on WCAE tonight at 10. Bowers, whose editorials are a feature of the Sun-Telegraph, is regarded as an authority on political and economic questions. His talk tonight marks his second appearance as a speaker over an NBC network within the last six weeks.

With Sobol guiding the magic carpet the musical portion of the program is picked up from San Francisco, where Anson Weeks and his orchestra are holding forth, and New York, where Russ Columbo's Orchestra is playing at the Woodmansten Inn.

Mr. Bowers

A new series of these cigaret Dance Hour broadcasts, with Walter O'Keefe, stage and night club star, as master of ceremonies, is slated to start about June 14. Bert Lahr, famous comedian, heretofore microphone-shy, is featured, and Walter Winchell, recovered from his illness, returns to appear once a week. The programs, continuing to feature magic carpet flights for dance music, also will include real-life dramatizations from New York police criminal files.

O'Keefe and the orchestras are scheduled on all programs.

Program Pointers

Two programs on KDKA tonight feature two finalists and the winners in Paul Whiteman's "Youth of America" auditions here. At 11:20 Chickie Moss, diminutive blues singer, and Ellsworth Davis, tenor, both finalists, are heard in a program of songs. Featured with the KDKA orchestra, the 50 and 50 Trio, who won the Whiteman contest, presents another half-hour broadcast at 6:15. The program includes "Crazy People," the lilting "Lullaby of the Leaves" and "Without a Song," from Great Day.

Miss Moss

George Wooton, Pittsburgh baritone, presents his first program from KQV in many months at 7:45.

The Four Mills Brothers do their vocal calisthenics in the studios of WXYZ, Detroit, during their program with Vic Young's orchestra on WJAS at 8:15. Young's band plays the accompaniment from New York.

Old favorites mingle with current hits on the program featuring Rudy Vallee and Irene Bordoni on WCAE at 8. Vallee and Miss Bordoni are heard from Chicago, while Graham McNamee speaks from New York.

"Nola," the ever-popular piano novelty, is presented as a special arrangement for two pianos by Arthur Schutt and Dan Liebefeld as a highlight of the Dance Gypsies program on KDKA at 10.

"Down on the Farm," an early Irving Berlin number, and the current popular hit, "Somebody Loves You," are featured by Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson on KDKA at 8.

Fan Fare

Before many weeks go by the Revelers expect to have a brand new repertoire. They're looking over a lot of new songs, some of which were written especially for them.

Reports have it that Harpo Marx may go on the air, and that the Ziegfeld Show may go on a tour. The orchestra that accompanies the Sisters of the Skillet is being changed to a fiddle, accordian and guitar ensemble. Welcome Lewis recently had her first ride in a submarine and likes it better than an airplane. Ely Culbertson speaks seven languages, but the last one he mastered was English. He was born and reared in Europe. And now we hear that there's a growing belief that television's big boom will come this fall.

Conrad, of Ray Mack and Conrad, a male trio billed "The Star dusters," which sings from WJAS for the second time this week tonight at 6:15, is none other than our old friend Tommy McFarland, the golden-voiced tenor who attained great popularity during his appearance at the Show Boat here. All of the boys are Pittsburghers and recently returned from a tour on the RKO-Pantchon and Marco circuit on the Pacific coast. On the way home they sang from KMOX in St. Louis and WTAM, Cleveland.

Mr. McFarland

The radio scribes are getting together on a glossary of radio similies. Just a few of them:

"As noticeable as a mistake on the air."

"As persistent as a song plugger around a broadcasting studio."

"As certain as a theme song."

"As regular as a 15-minute station break."

Question Box

Who plays the part of "Rosie" in the Goldberg sketches? Is it a child? Who are the Three Bakers? —G. R. K., Turtle Creek.

Roslyn Silber, who is only 12, but already a veteran radio actress, is "Rosie" in the Goldberg programs. She graduated yesterday from the Professional Children's School in New York. The Three Bakers are Brad Browne, Darrel Woodyard and Jack Parker.

GUARD PLANTS IN STRIKE

Police guarded several Pittsburgh dry-cleaning establishments today to prevent violence as the strike of members of the newly-formed Cleaners and Dyers Industrial Union entered its second day.

A girl clerk, Polly Stewart, of 815 Braddock avenue, was struck by one of five men who pursued Norman Singer, 275 Lombard street, a driver, into the Dutch Cleaners' store, 5752 Ellsworth avenue. Singer was slightly injured in the attack. The assailants have not been apprehended.

Communists Parade Forbidden by Lysle

Denied a permit to parade in Charleroi, the United Front Committee for National Youth Day, a Communistic organization, will not be permitted to march in McKeesport, Mayor George H. Lyle said today. The organization can hold a meeting but not a parade, he said.

The statement was made after the committee announced plans to march in McKeesport when a permit for a similar demonstration in Charleroi was refused.

COX TO CONFER WITH PINCHOT

At the request of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Father Cox will be in Harrisburg today to attend the conference on unemployment relief. Father Cox said last night that his attitude on this problem was the same as expressed when he was first placed on the unemployment committee two years ago. At that time he advocated a "back to the farm" movement with the idea in mind that 50 per cent of the desperately needy in the larger cities today are originally from rural communities. He maintains that if they were all back home it would be only a minor problem for the original community to care for them, but, crowded into a large city, they become a major problem. Father Cox will tell the Governor and his associates on the committee about his new farming community—"Coxtown"—holding it before them as an example of what can be done to help others to help themselves and what might have been the results had projects of this kind been generally started two years ago.

Father Cox

If you want to help the "father of the jobless" at a time when he most needs help, at a time when the problem of feeding thousands of hungry men, women and children is more serious than ever, clip the Sun-Telegraph home delivery order blank on this page and send it in today. You'll not only get a GOOD newspaper but you'll have the personal satisfaction of giving your personal aid to a worthy cause. Send the subscription blank to Father Cox if you wish.

If you are living in a city or town where there is no home delivery of the Sun-Telegraph, write to the subscription department, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., for mail subscription rates and state in your letter you are interested in the Father Cox fund.

Burke May Succeed Reed on Committee

By MARK SHIELDS

If Senator David A. Reed is unable to attend the meeting of the Republican national convention, and it seems he will not be, then Pennsylvania must select a new member of the resolutions committee, which draws the platform. Reed some time ago said the Senate should stay at work if its tasks were incomplete at convention time, and Washington observers believe that will be the situation.

Mr. Shields

Under the conditions the Senator, leader in this fidelity to duty, could not barge out to Chicago. Nor could Senators Watson, of Indiana; Moses, of New Hampshire, and others who followed Reed's lead, Watson doing so with some chagrin at not having been the first to make the statement. The Indianian, Republican leader in the Senate, a candidate for re-election, needs all the prestige such an announcement of devotion to duty would have meant, and Reed stole his thunder.

At an rate, it would not be surprising to see James Francis Burke on the resolutions committee in place of Reed. Burke is an alternate delegate and could have the seat of Reed, if he does not attend, or probably that of Jay Cooke, national committeeman, who may be kept at home by illness.

The resolutions job requires a man familiar with national political figures, and Burke fills that requirement. He would be satisfactory to the President, and it is intimated he would fully represent this state's anti-prohibition sentiment, feeling that a mere gesture of a referendum on the subject falls short of the requirements.

Butler Again May Head G. O. P. Committee

There's one prediction, and here's another:

William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, a former Senator, confidante of former President Coolidge and chairman of the Republican National Committee in the 1924 campaign, may be selected for that position again.

It is a foregone conclusion that Senator Fess, of Ohio, will retire as national chairman and Postmaster General Walter Brown will not succeed him, despite recent predictions. The Republican party wants some one with an appeal to the money interests, it is frankly admitted, and Butler meets that condition. Further, he is identified with the golden era of prosperity in the Coolidge regime, and may be set forth as a man having some magic with which to regain it, though as a national chairman he was no great shakes.

That, however, is not important. Brown will be the real man behind any national chairman, the man to furnish the political intelligence while some one more closely identified with successful private business sits in the front seat.

There are two predictions. If neither develops, perhaps you will forget, and I won't remind you. If one or both come true, then the story may modestly admit "as exclusively reported."

A substitute must also be found for Reed as chairman of the committee of Pennsylvania delegates selected to report recommendations on various resolutions submitted at the caucus in Philadelphia 10 days ago. The most important was the wet resolution of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, is a likely successor to Reed for this position.

Park as Swearingen Successor Not Likely

The story that District Attorney Andrew T. Park may be appointed to the Common Pleas Court bench in place of Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, reported ready to retire at any moment, contains too many flaws to be readily acceptable. It has additional flaws when considered in the light of the next conjectured step, the selection of Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk to take Park's place.

Gov. Pinchot would have to make the judicial appointment. The judges of Common Pleas Court would fill the District Attorney vacancy.

Independents here would attempt to block this succession for two reasons. One is that they want the judicial position for one of their own, the second is that they would blockade in every way the elevation of Clunk, who is considered too close to Senator James J. Coyne.

Park also has been considered friendly to Coyne, but Independents would not view that askance, as they would the selection of Clunk to take Park's place. In view of the recent campaign it is doubtful if Gov. Pinchot would consider any appointments which would be of advantage to Coyne. The first break between the two was brought about by Independents here and did not originate in the Governor's office, but as time went on, bitterness grew personally between the Governor and the Senator.

This is said with a full realization that there still are two or three men in the Governor's confidence who do not view Coyne with the same alarm as does County Commissioner C. M. Barr. But for the fact that County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern probably has a candidate of his own, it even can be imagined that he would not oppose a judicial aspirant simply because he was supported by Coyne.

The only part of the story that has substance is that Judge Swearingen is ready to resign, and might have done so long ago but for persuasive friends who wish to have a say in who shall NOT be appointed, even though they may not name who will be.

McGovern Broadcasts Plea for Prosperity Loan

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

HOMEWOOD SCHOOLGIRL WINS ESSAY PRIZE

M'GOVERN PLEA FOR JOB LOAN BROADCAST

Duty of Congress to Adopt Program to Provide Work, Commission Head Says

Warning that real and personal property today will not stand further taxation to raise funds for relief work, Charles C. McGovern, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, urged the $5,000,000,000 federal prosperity loan as the "most reasonable solution" to the problem of providing employment.

At the same time, Mayor Charles H. Kline announced that Council President John S. Herron will attend the national conference of mayors in Detroit next Wednesday to represent Pittsburgh in the discussion of the proposed federal aid plan to create employment through necessary public works programs.

MAYORS' CONFERENCE

Naming Herron followed receipt of an invitation from Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit. Invitations are being sent to mayors in all cities of more than 100,000 population by Mayor Murphy.

Lauding the simplicity of the $5,000,000,000 plan, Commissioner McGovern outlined its easy structure in a broadcast over Station WCAE last night, as follows:

"Uncle Sam is an employer. He has $5,000,000,000 to spend. He wants to construct buildings, bridges, locks and dams. He needs thousands of men to do the work. White-collar men, skilled laborers and pick-and-shovel men. So, with $5,000,000,000 in his pocket, he hires the men. That's the $5,000,000,000 bond issue as I see it. Uncle Sam puts the money into circulation by paying out for work. The men that get it spend it for necessities and luxuries. And the wheels get going again.

DUTY OF CONGRESS

"In this emergency it is the duty of Congress and the federal administration to make a move toward a solution. It has to stimulate business by creating jobs and payrolls and release the frozen assets of the country for work.

"We met conditions in the World War that required sacrifice and confidence. Liberty bonds were a new thing and there were plenty of fishy-eyed financiers who thought Liberty bonds an experiment that would upset banking. But, today, they are better than gold money. They furnished the finances for a great emergency. Now we are facing an even greater emergency here at home."

'ARMY' NEEDS CITED

The distress from unemployment as encountered daily by the Salvation Army and its problems of finding employment for the woman worker were cited in a radio broadcast today by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, who is chairman of the woman's division of that organization. Her work is centered in finding employment for women. Mrs. Miller said:

"Crime, recruited all too frequently from the ranks of the hungry, desolate and homeless, threatens the sanctity and safety of our homes and families. The prosperity bond issue is the chief hope of the nation and immediate action is needed."

County Judge D. Paulson Foster will speak for the federal aid plan in a broadcast at 6:30 o'clock tonight from station WCAE. Mrs. F. B. Chalfant, member of the Board of Public Education, will appeal to women listeners at 9:05 o'clock tomorrow morning.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 26.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Congress is wondering if they will be through in time for their various conventions. Now the question arises in our time the same as in Shakespeare's (or some other old timer) "to be in session or not to be in session, that is the question, whether it is better to suffer with or without Congress." Most folks say, "Let them suffer like they have made us suffer," but to keep a politician away from his convention is just like taking ice cream away from a kid. It's liable to make 'em so mad, there is no telling what they will pass. Yours,

WILL.

Garner Receives Petition Of 16 Michigan Mayors Urging Relief Bonds

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Speaker Garner today had before him the petition of 16 Michigan mayors urging a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief.

Headed by Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, the Michigan mayors' petition related that local communities were having difficulty caring for their needy. They appealed to the federal government to come to the rescue. Their petition said:

"We indorse the proposal of the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan for an immediate program on a national scale that will create jobs and thus restore the purchasing power to millions of workers and be of immeasurable benefit to business and industry."

Meanwhile, latest relief moves in Congress were:

1. Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, introduced his $2,200,000,000 bill for relief loans to states, public works construction and aid to farmers.

2. Speaker Garner announced his $2,100,000,000 relief program for public works and direct aid to the jobless will be in bill form tomorrow.

3. Plans were completed for the congressional mass meeting tonight to consider relief legislation.

4. Representative Keller (Dem.), of Illinois, filed a bill for a $1,500,000,000 relief program.

A compromise is expected to be worked out which will be stacked against the Hoover relief program of $1,500,000,000 for Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans for revenue-producing public works.

A pronounced movement to include the five-day week in unemployment relief legislation was reported today.

Representative Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, said:

"I think the five-day week must be included in any legislation. The five-day week could be enforced on all contracts for public works and on all projects for which the federal government may loan money to states and cities.

"It would be a recognition that we must balance production against consumption. It would immediately give added employment."

MAN KIDNAPED IN HOLDUP

Three unmasked thugs drove up to the Standard Oil Company gasoline station at 7600 Penn avenue early today and forced Louis P. Elwell, 21, of 2911 Gilmore street, Wilkinsburg, a relief attendant to enter their automobile, he reported to East End police.

At Pearl and Lorigan streets, Bloomfield, five miles from the station, he was liberated after he had been robbed of $20. A short time later the machine used by the bandits was found at Twenty-first street and Liberty avenue. It had been stolen from a garage of J. R. Pierpoint, of Wellesley avenue, head of the Pierpoint Motor Company, police said.

When the robbers drove up to the station, Elwell said one grabbed him by the arm as he started to serve them, saying:

"Let's go."

He was forced to lie on the floor of the car during the five-mile ride.

STEADY DECLINE IN WORK SHOWN BY SURVEY

Business Research Bureau of Pitt Reveals Employment Drop Throughout District

Disclosures of continued declines in employment, payrolls and man-hours worked in this district are made today in the latest tables compiled by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh.

Due, it was explained, to the usual spring activity in manufacturing, employment figures for April fell no lower than those of March. However, the table shows a drop of 18.7 per cent in employment for April, compared with April, 1931. Employment in March, 1932, was only 69.1 per cent of the average peak period in 1929.

EMPLOYMENT DOWN

In all lines of business—including railroads, public utilities, mines, construction, banking, department stores, wholesale trade and miscellaneous non-manufacturing—there was a drop of 0.9 per cent in employment in April, 1932, compared with March. Employment in April, 1932, was 19.7 per cent below April, 1931. March, 1932, was only 70.1 per cent of the 1929 average.

In figures based on representative manufacturing payrolls in the Pittsburgh district, April, 1932, revealed a 4.9 per cent decrease from the March average and a drop of 43.5 per cent from April, 1931. In the first four months of 1932 there was a drop of 41.2 per cent from the figures of the corresponding period of 1931.

PAYROLL DECREASE

In all lines of business, including non-manufacturing groups, payrolls dropped 5.1 per cent in April, 1932, from the preceding month, and 39.3 per cent from April, 1931. In the first four months of 1932 there was a drop of 35.5 per cent from the same period in 1931.

In the first four months of 1932, man-hour totals in manufacturing establishments dropped 37.5 per cent from the corresponding period in 1931. There was a drop of 4.7 per cent in April, 1932, from March, 1932, and April of 1932 was 41 per cent lower than April of 1931. March, 1932, was only 44.4 per cent of the average level of 1929.

The percentages set forth in the tables were obtained by a study of industry in Allegheny and surrounding counties, nine in all.

More than 400 students participated. This contest was conducted by the schools and had no connection with the Hearst essay contest.

Winner of first prize among eighth grade students was John Kelly, St. Mary School, New Castle.

The seventh grade prize was given to Patrick Callahan, Assumption School, Bellevue.

Other first prizes awarded were Esther Gannon, sixth grade, St. Basil School, Carrick; Catherine Carrigan, fifth grade, St. Alphonsus School, Springdale, and Joseph Gee, fourth grade, St. Rosalia School.

Holy Rosary High Junior Receives 2 Awards for Washington Composition

Awards for the Hearst essay contest based on Washington's farewell address have been made.

Miss Mary Louise Holzapfel, 17, of Forest way, Homewood, a junior in Holy Rosary High School, today learned that the judges of the essay contest, conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, selected her essay as the best.

Gathering the entire high and grade schools together, Sister M. Paulinus, principal of Holy Rosary High School called Miss Holzapfel for the presentation of the award, a gold cup and $100. The Rev. D. J. Maladey, pastor of the church, made the presentation shortly before noon.

HEARST GIVES PRIZES

The prize for the best essay based on the address, was given by William Randolph Hearst, who last February espoused the contest in connection with the Washington bicentennial.

The board of judges have also awarded four gold medals, four silver, four bronze medals and more than 400 diplomas of merit. The winners of the medals will be announced in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph, while on succeeding days the names of those winning diplomas will be published.

While the board of judges consisted of representatives of the universities, colleges and junior institutions of learning, headed by Dr. Ben G. Graham, city superintendent of schools, members of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute of Technology and Duquesne University were represented at the board meetings. Only members of the board could vote. Every precaution as to fairness in judging was used, manuscrips being recorded by numbers, rather than by names or schools.

50,000 IN CONTEST

The first prize winners competed with essays from many schools, secondary and college, in the tri-state area. It was estimated that between 50,000 and 75,000 were written. Only a percentage reached the judging board, due to principals and teachers sending in only the best.

The first prize winner has several medals, three certificates of merit from previous essay contests in which she competed, and two years ago was runner-up for a university scholarship offered by the Traffic Club.

Tax the Porkers, Senator, But Not the Sausage

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Senator Norris wants to whittle the national debt by plastering a dollar tax on hogs.

That's all right with us, Senator. We haven't got any hogs.

You can tax all the porkers you want so long as you lay off ham and fresh country sausage.

This Congress will be famous for a rush of taxes to the pocket and nothing to the head.

The boys have taxed everything now but granny's reading spectacles. Balancing the budget is tougher than using a live eel for a yardstick.

Why not call everything off and start fighting the Indians again?

You can't make bean soup out of pebbles. And Congress' efforts to vulcanize both ends of the deficit are following the path of the egg that the silly hen laid on a slanting roof.

KEARCHER GETS PARK STANDS

John P. Kearcher, [illegible] was awarded the contract for refreshment stands for season by the County Commissioners over 25 other bidders.

Kearcher was a supporter of the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, and was defeated last year for re-election as alderman of the Seventeenth Ward.

He was given the contract today over the protest of Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who made the unseconded motion before Commissioners W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr voted for Kearcher's bid of 35 per cent of the gross revenue be accepted.

McGovern moved that all bids be thrown out, saying:

"We don't want to make any money, we want to give the people more than their money's worth. Some reputable concern should be interested in this as an advertising project."

When this motion was unseconded, he moved that the time of the contract be cut from four years to one. This too failed to get a response.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly cheerful and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a sick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Then often poisons out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing action when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Refuse substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

GORDON DENIES FAILURE TO AID BANK PLAN

Secretary Asserts Lewin Said Cash Could Not Be Obtained for Reopening

Dr. William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, has denied that lack of co-operation on the part of the State Banking Department is responsible for the failure of the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company to reopen.

The charge was made recently by Dr. A. L. Lewin, chairman of the depositors' committee seeking to reorganize the bank.

EXPLAINS FAILURE

The real reason for the failure of plans, Dr. Gordon said, was that the reorganization committee has been unable to raise enough new money to permit the institution to reopen on a sound basis. He explained the department did not raise its asset requirements to reorganize any bank, but market quotations frequently interfered with the actual value of investments which would form part of the new assets. Falling prices of stocks and bonds, he said, reduced the investments' value and made it necessary to raise more cash to have the assets worth the figure originally set by the department.

In a recent telegram to Dr. Gordon, Dr. Lewin said that after two months of labor those seeking reopening of the bank had found it impossible to satisfy the State Banking Department. Dr. Lewin was also quoted as saying not one constructive suggestion had been received from the department.

TELLS OF PRAISE

Dr. Gordon expressed amazement at the Lewin statement, declaring that May 4, in the presence of five persons, including Dr. Gordon, Dr. Lewin had declared that because of adverse business conditions it was impossible to raise sufficient cash. Regarding that conference, Dr. Gordon said:

"He frankly commended me for the splendid co-operation given to him and his committee, and in no way attributed the failure of the plan to any lack of co-operation on our part."

Dr. Gordon explained that the Banking Department cannot promote new banks or raise capital to reorganize banks, being able only to pass on plans submitted.

How Often Should a Man Forgive Erring Wife?

All the world was against her. The man had tricked her, and left her in the lurch to face her shame alone. She didn't have a friend.

Then along came a boy who loved her, gave her another chance, married her and stuck by her through the years.

And now she has rewarded his faith and love and devotion by betraying him and their children.

What shall he do now?

Shall he believe her when she says she is sorry, now that she has learned her hard lesson and won't ever slip again? Or shall he just take her back? Or shall he put her out of his and their children's lives?

What would you do?

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I would like to have some advice on a problem that is bothering me very much.

"To begin with, I became infatuated with a girl who had a somewhat shady start in life.

"She was only 16 when she got in trouble. We met when I was 18, she 19 and the child two years old. I married her against the better judgment of my parents and all the people concerned.

"Well, we married. A year later a child was born to us, which I love dearly as does everyone else. In the fourth year of our union another child was born, but it died 10 months later.

HAD WIFE ARRESTED

"About the end of the fifth year I left my family. Financial trouble, bad temper, her unreasonableness and domineering attitude were all part of the trouble. I was to blame for some of it. We just naturally clashed.

"Three months after I left her, she became involved with another so-called man, 18 years old. I learned of it and had them both arrested, convicted, and placed on probation.

"Now most men in my position would despise her, but I can't. She simply is weak and has all. I don't care what happens, attitude since I left her.

I am willing now to take one more chance, for the sake of the children and their moral environment, also hers, and she has asked me to take her back.

She promises to be faithful in the future, and to play the game 50-50. But she has broken promises before.

HOPES FOR THE BEST

"To sum it all up, if she keeps her promises and will be a good wife from now on and I a better husband, won't that be better for the children and ourselves? Can we lead a sane and moral life in spite of what everybody else says?

I know people will say I'm crazy to go back, but I don't care what people say if it is for the best. She says she loves me, but doesn't care what happens if I don't come back to her. I don't want any more tragedy, but I won't consider myself a martyr if I do try it over and things don't pan out. What shall I do?" E. M. F.

What if you do? Well, I'd say give her another chance. She has been wild and foolish and weak, but maybe what has happened to her has helped her to grow up. Maybe now she will keep her promises. It's worth trying, to keep your family together.

Then, if she hasn't changed, if she still won't walk straight and try to be a real wife, get out and take those babies with you. For such a mother will be the worst thing that could happen to them.

That's my answer to E. M. F. What's yours?

Persons whose incomes are modest look with amazement and a little envy at the famous, whose incomes are great.

But it so often happens that those who earn little, but manage wisely, end up with a cozy home, a substantial small business and the comforts of life, while the celebrity ends up broke.

Authors, actors, pugilists, promoters and such, whose activities and earning powers in the prime of their professional careers are so astonishingly big, sometimes die and leave estates which are just as astonishingly small.

A great part of their public career is pose. Celebrities often spend more than they earn to maintain a display which will exaggerate their pay and importance.

Not satisfied, they gamble or invest foolishly for more gains—and lose.

Rose Fever Is a Distressing Ailment

During the last of May and early part of June, as well as a good part of July, rose fever is a common complaint. This period corresponds approximately with the time the roses are in bloom. Largely because of this coincidence the disease has been given its name.

Dr. Copeland.

The fact is, however, that the attacks are not produced by the rose or by rose dust. Similar symptoms have been experimentally produced by the pollen of certain grasses. But even though the disease is not properly named, undoubtedly the term will persist.

Rose fever is known by other names, particularly hay fever, while often it is called spring fever. The disease may continue into August, so it might as well be called summer fever.

Hay fever and other similar ailments are found to run in families. Although not definitely proved, the tendency may actually be hereditary.

Perhaps the most characteristic symptom is a sensation of heat and fullness in the eyes, with redness and discharge of tears. The smarting and itching are intense. Soon the eyes become inflamed and discharge more freely.

With many the most annoying complaint is the severe sneezing. This is the natural result of the pronounced irritation of the nose. There is not only sneezing, but violent sneezing. The patient is made miserable—extremely uncomfortable, indeed.

On other occasions I have told you about the sensitivity tests. These tests are made by scratching the skin and applying some of the pollen extract. One test after another is made to determine what grass or pollen or other substance produces a reaction. Once the offending substance has been determined, a vaccine is then given to the patient by hypodermic injection.

Although a great many claim to have been benefited by this method of treatment, there remains a doubt as to its real value.

If one has a tendency to hay fever it is well to consult the doctor before the regular time of attack has arrived. It may be that nasal treatment will help to lessen the severity of the symptoms.

It must not be overlooked that certain food poisonings may have something to do with the trouble. All in all, the ailment is perplexing, but patient research is likely to reveal the real cause.

-:- Household Hints -:-

If your bed springs are not of the box variety they should be covered over with a washable cover to prevent their rusting the mattress.

By adding sugar after fruit is cooked less is needed. Also a pinch of cooking soda takes away sharpness of most acid fruits.

When tomatoes are to be used in combination with milk or cream, add a dash of bicarbonate of soda to them before mixing. This prevents curdling.

Contract Bridge -:-

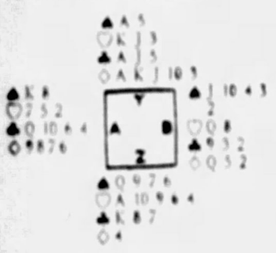
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Bold Bidding

In response to Y's opening bid of 2-Diamonds, Z bid 2-Hearts. Under the Official System, the response to a semi-demand opening bid of two must never be jumped. The opening bidder promises another bid by his two. Y feared that contracting might die if he bid only 3-Hearts, so he bid 4-Hearts. Having in his own hand five probable tricks as declarer, Z went to 5-Hearts, which Y raised to 6-Hearts, upon eight probable tricks. When trick counting exceeds 10, results depend more upon how hands fit than upon probable tricks. Y was bold when he bid even the small slam, after his partner had once passed. The full hands are shown below. The opening lead was the 4 of clubs.

Before reading the explanation of what Z did, try how many tricks you can win against A-B's best play.



The rule of eleven (eleven minus the value of the fourth-best card lead, 11 minus 4) showed that outside A's hand there were just seven cards higher than the 4. As declarer and dummy held six higher cards than the 4, B could hold only one higher card. Dummy played low, B played his 9, and declarer's K won the trick, with the assurance that the Q-10-6 were held by A.

Z's method of playing the hand might not be approved by all. Instead of first leading three rounds of trumps to prevent an adverse ruff of diamonds, Z at once led his only diamond. Y's Ace and K won two diamond tricks. Upon the second trick, Z discarded his lowest spade. Then Z trumped a lead of dummy's lowest diamond, dropping the missing Q, and leaving in dummy two good cards of the suit.

Following the sound custom of playing a high card from the short end of a suit, Z led the 5 of hearts from his own hand, put up dummy's K, then led back the J from Y's cards. When the Q covered, Z won with his Ace, and for his seventh trick Z led his 10 of hearts to clear out all opposing trumps.

Dummy won the eighth trick with the J of clubs. The next two tricks were taken by Y's two good diamonds, and upon them Z discarded two spades, leaving him only the Q of that suit, which he cast under Y's Ace of Spades upon the eleventh trick.

The twelfth trick was won by Dummy's Ace of Clubs, and for the last trick of his grand slam, Z used his last trump to ruff the lead of Y's 5 of spades. Not only had Y-Z's bold bidding resulted in making the small slam undertaken, but they had won one trick above their contract.

As Z afterwards explained, he had not expected to be fortunate enough to establish Y's diamonds by ruffing once, but he had hoped to establish one diamond in dummy upon which he might cast off one spade more than he had let go upon the second lead of diamonds. In case Z had to lose one trump trick, as appeared probable, Z's only chance for fulfillment of his small slam contract lay in being able to discard all his losing spades upon dummy's diamonds.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Best Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been reading your column for the past six months and I have benefited by it very much, thanks to you and your writers. I have only been in this country about a year, and do not quite know all your customs as yet, so will you please help me as you have others?

A very dear friend of mine is going to be married and has asked me to be best man. Will you please tell me what I should give the bridesmaid for a present, and if it is up to me to pay for the ceremony?

J. M. T.

Thank you for your kind words about my column. I was especially glad to have you say this, for I have always been especially eager to help people who are new to this country, and who are, therefore, sometimes confused by the difference of customs from the ones in the country from which they have come.

The question you ask is in point . . . in America the best man does not have any financial responsibilities about the wedding. He simply is on hand to help the groom, on the day of the wedding. He does not give any presents to anyone, except his wedding present to the bride, and he does not send flowers to anyone. He pays no part of the wedding ceremony. The bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding, and they pay the wedding expenses. The groom pays for the wedding ring and the license.

Form of Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I lived so happily with my husband for over 30 years and since he was called away, is it correct for me, as his widow, to still use his initials when corresponding with friends, or should I use Mrs. Mary Jones?

READER.

Use exactly the same form of name that you used when your husband was living . . . Mrs. John Thompson Smith, for the formal name. This should be the form that your friends should use, for instance, when they address an envelope to you.

HARRIS TO OPPOSE REDS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Bucs Keep Up Advance. Trio Not Yet Shut Out. Dawson May Quit Again. More Dukes to Coach. Young's Marks Endure. Edge Seen for Walker.

KREMER'S LAME START NOT ALARMING

THERE IS NOTHING alarming in the fact that Remy Kremer failed to go the distance at Cincinnati yesterday in his first start of the season. He merely lacked his usual strength and staying power after a long period of inaction and illness, which explains why he had to be lifted in spite of having been given a five-run lead right off the bat. Kremer, 36, has reached an age at which pitchers don't get any better, but he is far from being done, and, later on, probably will be worth a whole lot more to the Bucs than his unimpressive beginning would appear to indicate.

Remy Kremer

Where Kremer failed, Bill Swift came in with a swell job of relief pitching to keep up the Pirates' improved gait and assure the capture of both series on the western trip. Counting three out of five from Brooklyn, that makes three series in a row the Rovers have bagged. They have won five of their last six, and seven of their last 10 games, have climbed to sixth place, are only half a game below fifth position and only one game from the first division. All of which would seem to spell progress.

ONLY THREE CLUBS in the two big leagues have not yet been shut out. They are the Giants in the National and the Yankees and A's in the American. The Yanks and Pirates share the standing record for fewest shutouts in a season. The Bucs were whitewashed only once in 1901 and the Yanks drew but one blank in 1927.

A shutout suffered by the A's last year prevented Lefty Grove from setting a new American League record for consecutive pitching victories. He had won 16 straight, equaling the mark set by Smoky Joe Wood in 1912, when he ran into Dick Coffman, of the Browns, on August 23 and was halted, 1 to 0.

IT IS SAID that Max Carey's next move to bolster the Brooklyn club will be to call in Bud Clancy, formerly of the White Sox, from the Jersey City farm to supplant George Kelly at first base.

Carey took Bruce Caldwell, former Yale athlete, on the trip to Boston this week for the purpose of giving him some practice, and plans to send Caldwell to Jersey City as a replacement for Clancy.

JOE DAWSON, aviator pitcher, who returned to the game this spring to pitch for Kansas City in the American Association under a Pirate option after almost three years in retirement, may withdraw from baseball again as suddenly as he came back to it. Joe made a flying visit to Pittsburgh this week and spent two days here making application on behalf of the Babcock-Dawson firm for a permit to fly passengers to and from the new Allegheny County airport. He departed by plane to rejoin his club, leaving the airport work in the hands of two of the firm's fliers for the present, but he plans later to do some of it himself. His intention now is to finish the season with Kansas City, but friends say they will not be surprised if he changes his mind and decides to give up baseball at any time to return to the air game.

Fred Cristina

OF THE EIGHT football letter men who will pass out of Duquesne University athletics when the commencement exercises are held at Soldiers' Memorial Hall, Wednesday, June 8, three will step into coaching jobs next fall, showing a growing demand for the tutoring services of gridders turned out by Elmer Layden.

Fred Cristina, halfback, will coach the high school team of his home town of Bentleyville; Mike Ferrare, of Erie, whom Coach Layden last season pronounced the fastest charging guard he had ever seen, will handle the line at Ellwood City High School, where Ganzy Benedict, former Duquesne halfback, is head coach, and Jim O'Donnell, the big tackle from Altoona, probably will sign as mentor at a high school in Allegheny County.

O'DONNELL IS FOREMOST among the graduating athletes on the Bluff. He is president of the Monogram Club, first student representative on the University Council on Athletics, member of the Student Senate, class officer in the school of education and distinguished student.

All of the other gridders graduating also rank high scholastically. In addition to Cristina and Ferrare, they are Bud Devenny, quarterback, of Rochester; Ted Amman, guard, of Erie; Stafford Murphy, end, of Punxsutawney; Ben Barrett, center, of Youngstown, O., and Val Trambley, halfback, of Erie. No basketball men will be lost.

DENTON T. YOUNG, the famous Old Cy, of Cleveland, St. Louis and Boston, who on March 22 celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary, is still active on his farm near Paoli, O. Other pitchers have continued in vain to shoot at the marks Cy left behind him. He still holds the all-time record for major league slab service and achievements. From 1890 to 1911 in the two major leagues he pitched in 873 games, winning 511 and losing 315 for a percentage of .619. He hurled a no-hit game when he was 41, the third performance of that kind during his career. One of them was a perfect game, in which no batter reached first base. Only six games of this kind have been pitched in major league history.

ONE OF THE best examples of a sportsman who is not seeking gold or glory on the turf, but who owns, breeds and races thoroughbreds merely for the fun he gets out of it, is A. C. Bostwick. He showed this again last Saturday when he sacrificed any chance he might have had to win the Metropolitan Handicap in order to let his brother, George H. (Pete) Bostwick, ride his crack horse, Mate.

Horsemen do not claim that Mate, winner of the 1931 Preakness, could have won the Metropolitan with a professional jockey in the saddle, but they do think he could have pressed Equipoise and finished second instead of third. The owner did not criticize the ride of his brother, who is a steeplechase jockey. Instead, he commended it, and says it is his intention to have Pete ride Mate in other stake events.

IT ISN'T OFTEN that you hear of brothers standing out at the same time in athletics at either West Point or Annapolis, but an instance of that sort has just gone into the Army's sports records.

Paulino Uzcudun

Bogardus and Douglas Cairns, of Manchester, N. H., are the brothers to earn the distinction. Monograms in swimming have been awarded to both. Army reports show that of the 1,200 cadets in the Military Academy, 329 were on varsity or plebe athletic squads.

PAULINO UZCUDUN enters the ring in New York tonight as the latest heavyweight to try to check the advance of little Mickey Walker in that division. Walker, though fighting longer than his opponent, will not have years against him this time, as Paulino is 33 and Mickey is not yet 31, but the Toy Bulldog, as usual, will be giving away weight and height, and, besides, he is tackling one of the toughest men in the fight game. That Mickey is plenty tough himself, however, will hardly be disputed, and with his greater speed and fighting spirit he looks good to win the decision over the rugged Spaniard, whom many fighters have dodged and none has ever knocked out. This will be Walker's first appearance in New York's Madison Square Garden since Joe Dundee scored a technical knockout over him there in 1926. Phil Delmont in 1919 was the only other fighter ever to stop Mickey.

Another world boxing champion—the second within four nights—makes his appearance before Pittsburgh fans tonight when Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, holder of the junior-welterweight title, shows his wares against Herman Folins, of Ambridge, in the 10-round main bout in the Hickey Park arena, Millvale. Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight ruler, met Battling Gizzy at the Meyers Bowl last Monday night, and, next Tuesday night, Jadick is no newcomer here, although he has not appeared here before in the role of a champion. He has boxed Tony Herrera here twice, beating him the first time, at the Meyers Bowl, last summer, when he scored a knockdown for the count of nine in the first round, and losing by a technical knockout in their second meeting, in Motor Square Garden, when a cut eye caused the referee to stop the bout. He also has boxed Sammy Dorfman here.

Herman Folins

Jadick arrived in town yesterday and worked out in the gymnasium of the First Ward Club in Homestead.

FORMER AMATEUR STAR

Folins is a former amateur flyweight star, who went to New York to turn professional and since has made his fighting headquarters in Newark, N. J., where his parents reside. He has boxed here only once before as a pro, against Ken Hargraves at the Bowl, a few summers ago. He was back here on a visit at the time and was not in very good shape. Hargraves, a counter puncher, dropped him during the bout, but he recovered to finish in good style. Among the men he has boxed in the East are Ray Miller, Jose Martinez, Sid Lampe, Joe Belmont, Al Santora, Young Firpo, Al Bryant, Bobby Hamilton, Harry Foy, Eddie Elkins, Harry Mosco, Joey Costa, Carmen Roman, Koli Kolo, Mickey Bias, Irish Johnny Toye, Harry Carlton and Joe Ghnouley. His real name is Armando Folino, and he was born in Italy. He is a good boxer and a fair puncher.

A SINGLE FLOWER COST $25,000—The $25,000 orchid was named in honor of J. Gurney Fowler, president of the Royal Horticultural Society. It is a hybrid of Cypripedium and is a result of horticultural experimental efforts extending over a period of years. The achievement can be appreciated only by a horticulturist, and the record of $25,000 for a single flower is not considered extravagant in professional circles. THE PARROT THAT COULD SING—About a century ago, a parrot was adopted as the favorite pet of the Canon in the Cathedral of Salzburg, Austria, and during its 10-year stay in the cathedral was given instruction regularly for two hours every day. SCHOOL TITLE PLAY OPENS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Intersectional playoff contests of the first annual Interscholastic Tennis Conference title race get under way on the University of Pittsburgh courts at 2 o'clock this afternoon. With the crack Taylor Allderdice High School squad, captor of city honors and initial leg on the Pittsburgh Tennis Association three-year trophy, meeting Wilkinsburg, County Section II victor, while the powerful Mount Lebanon host, champion of County Section I, encounters Crafton, survivor of the County Section III chase, fast and interesting action is assured from the very start of hostilities.

Allderdice and Mount Lebanon, while strongly favored to come through the peliminary competition and to tangle in the windup, face sturdy and well-balanced opposition.

Pitt sport authorities have placed up a handsome cup symbolic of the conference title and 'tis for a season's possession of this goblet, as well as for the distinction attendant upon bagging the crown, that the high school warriors fight today. Winners of the penultimate frays will mingle on the Panther rectangles in final combat next Tuesday.

FIELDS MATCH HERE OFF

CHICAGO, May 26.—(AP.)—Jackie Fields, welterweight boxing champion, was taken to a Chicago hospital today for a 48-hour observation. It was feared he would have to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

For some time, Fields has been bothered with his appendix and an ulcerated tooth. Physicians were apprehensive lest septic poisoning already had set in.

His business manager in Chicago, Ray Alvis, said his match against Ted Yarosz at Pittsburgh next Tuesday night had been called off, but that, pending outcome of his observation, no action would be taken toward postponement of his championship match against Young Corbett, of Fresno, Cal., at San Francisco, June 28.

"Naturally, we can't say or do anything about Fields' championship fight against Corbett until we know exactly what his condition is," Alvis said. "We are anxious to go through with the fight, but if he has to undergo an operation now, why it's out of the question for months."

WANERS POUND BALL HARD AS BUCS WIN

CINCINNATI, May 26.—With the peppery Pirates threatening the first-division boys as they lay waste Redland hopes, Manager Howley, of the local club, today was working on new plans with the idea of getting the Waner boys out.

Paul Waner

In the past two days the Pirates have trimmed the ambitious Redlegs and in the two battles Paul and Lloyd have gathered an even dozen hits, which is beating Old Man Par by a few strokes. And the Oklahoma kids have not confined themselves to pasting the ball safely, they are scoring runs in profusions and pounding in quite a few to boot.

Manager George Gibson, rather proud boss of the youthful Pirates, today was happy in the knowledge that his so-called second division team had caused a lot of concern in St. Louis and Cincinnati in the past few days. The Buccos took two out of three from the world champions and followed through with two triumphs here, the last of which was achieved quite handily yesterday afternoon when the Pittsburgher won, 9 to 4.

HARRIS TO PITCH

Gibby stated this morning he would assign Bill Harris to the mound in the final set for this afternoon. Red Lucas, the Nashville Narcissus, will fling for the home boys.

Remy Kremer made his first start of the season yesterday, and while the ailing veteran was not among those present in the fight when the victory was clinched, he was impressive for the most part, and was given credit for the victory, inasmuch as he pitched five rounds and was leading when he left the contest.

Bill Swift came out of the fracas with banners flying. Leon Chagnon essayed to twirl in the sixth, but when the French-Canadian wavered at the outset he was quickly derricked in favor of the Kansas City graduate. Bill held the Rhinelanders to one hit in four frames.

The Buccos won the ball game in a hurry. Owen Carroll found the Waner boys troublesome and with the bases filled and none out, Traynor came through with a single and Barbee weighed in with a double that scored four runs. Benton relieved Carroll and was greeted by Suhr with a double to score the fifth run of the inning.

HAFEY HITS HOMER

Kremer went through the first inning in good fashion, but Chick Hafey nicked him for a long homer in the second and Ernie Lombardi followed with a triple that grew into a run. Kremer pitched two more runless rounds, the Pirates adding two runs in the fourth. The Reds came back with two in the fifth and Gibby decided to rest Kremer. As the battle moved along the Pirates added two more runs and Swift nursed the lead like a star.

CUBS, BRAVES CONTINUE FIGHT FOR LEAD

CARDS BLANKED BY GRIMES; BROWN WINS

Associated Press

Burleigh Grimes scooted from the witness chair only three days ago that he was just about "washed up" as a big league pitcher, but he would never have gotten away with it had the St. Louis Cardinals been sitting in judgement.

The Records were ready to swear today that the 38-year-old spitballer still has plenty of solts left in his right arm.

All they needed to refresh their minds was a glance at yesterday's box score in which they encountered their former teammate for the first time since he helped pitch them to a world championship last October.

GRIMES BAFFLES CARDS

Toiling for the Chicago Cubs, he set his old comrades down with seven scattered hits and shut them out, 3 to 0. It was Grimes fourth start for the Cubs and his third victory.

The triumph not only was a source of satisfaction to the veteran, but was a great help to the Cubs in their neck-and-neck scrap with Boston for the National League top.

Bobby Brown, the 20-year-old sensation from Binghamton, kept the Braves at the head of the class by defeating Brooklyn 4 to 2.

GIANTS BEAT PHILS

For the third straight day the Giants and Phils engaged in an old-fashioned slugfest, and the Giants made it two out of three for the series by winning 12 to 8. Bill Terry led the winners attack, knocking in four runs with his tenth home run of the year, a double and a single.

Fumbles by Heath and Hafey helped Pittsburgh score five runs in the first inning and eventually trim Cincinnati 9 to 4.

Only two games were scheduled in the American League. One at Chicago was rained out and the other, at Detroit, was washed away in the fourth inning with the St. Louis Browns ahead 1 to 0. It was no contest.

SPORT VIGNETTES

There's an interesting story in the career of Art Sekay, Pitt athlete, who has engaged in four branches of sport for the Blue and Gold. It is the story of a former caddie on the Schenley Park public golf course who has made his mark as a collegian.

Starting out as a caddie when he was nine years old, Sekay has mastered the links sport in no uncertain fashion. He was a member of the winning caddie team of the public course in both 1927 and 1928, and last year he reached the semi-finals of the city public links championship tournament before losing to Walter Phillips in 18 holes. Recently he helped the Pitt varsity golf team to score a victory over Notre Dame here.

After starring in football and basketball at Schenley High School, Sekay entered Pitt in 1929. He played on the freshman football team and was on the varsity in 1930 and last year, and also went in for basketball and boxing last year and for golf this spring. Last winter, when Dr. Carlson, the basketball coach, issued a call for reinforcements following the trip to California, Sekay was among the first to respond, along with Jim MacMurdo and Rip Collins. When the boxing team needed a 175-pounder for the meet with Carnegie Tech, Sekay jumped into the breach although he scaled only 155 pounds, and went against Tom Waldron, one of the Plaid stars who knocked him out in the second round, but failed to dampen his ardor for the sport. He is a student in the dental school and has an "A" average, standing sixth in his class.

During his bout with Waldron, Sekay pulled one for the book. Returning to his corner after a stormy first round, he asked his second to apply smelling salts. He was told to wait and get them after the next round. "Hey, I won't be here then—give them to me now!" was his wow retort.—HARRY KECK.

ALEMGREN NEW CHESS CHAMP

S. Alemgren, 1000 Morewood avenue, former chess champion of Providence and runner-up for the Rhode Island state championship in 1929, today holds the chess crown of Western Pennsylvania as a result of his victory over Kalman Erdeky in the final match of the eliminations staged by the Pittsburgh Chess Club.

S. Alemgren

John Emery, Jr., last year's champion, was eliminated in the early rounds of the tournament. H. L. Dolde and Paul Bowers, two of the best players enrolled in the local club, were unable to compete.

CHAMP JADICK BOXES HERE

Jerry Clements is in with Johnny Montebane in the opener, set for 8:45 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Steve Hamas, the young heavyweight boxer and his wife are paying a visit to State College, Pa., where the former Penn State football star is renewing acquaintances.

Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, will train at the Delaware Park track another hour during the summer, he announced Matchmaker Lew Raymond before leaving after his bout with Battling Gizzy last Monday night. His opponent may be Tony Battaglia.

New Kensington Fire Company No. 1 will stage its first amateur bouts in New Kensington, June 10. Leading boxers will appear on the card.

Peter Hennigan, of Charlton, turned in a daring victory when he knocked out Al Cluzio, of New York, in the second round of their battle on the Meyers Bowl opening card. Cluzio scored 17 knockouts in 19 amateur bouts and also fighting professional last June he has stopped nine opponents in 14 starts and had not been beaten before bowing to Hennigan. He has beaten Georgie Ginsberg, Al Scarpati, last year's New York Golden Gloves and National amateur champion; Johnny Fitzpatrick and other good ones. He is only a husky lad and an art student. Cluzio has gone back to New York, but plans to return here and try to even his score with Hennigan.

Dan Asio, former amateur star, of Uniontown, is back from a campaign in New York, set to battle under the banner of Bill Shmendinger. He is a lightweight.

Nick Ellenwood, of Indianapolis who recently was stopped by Mickey Duris at Johnstown, is trying to land a return bout.

Joseph S. Wilson, of Canonsburg, who examined Battling Gizzy yesterday found him still suffering from back sprain as a result of his fall through the ropes to end his battle with Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, in the Meyers Bowl last Monday night. He said Gizzy's condition was a sharp-like sprain and that he would have to rest up for a few weeks before resuming training. Meanwhile Gizzy will forego an intended operation for tonsils and adenoids until some future date.

Peter John, local bantamweight, has had his nose operated upon and will be ready to resume boxing in about three weeks. His stablemate, Casey Rhodes, Negro welterweight, is available for bouts now, according to his manager, Bill Heckman.

Fidel LaBarba will meet the winner of tonight's bout between Pete Young, Paul Bout of Detroit, the final round of the N. B. A. featherweight elimination tournament, at Los Angeles, June 14. Pete won a disputed decision over LaBarba early in the tournament.

TARTANS CLOSE YEAR'S SPORT CARD TODAY

By JESS CARVER

The sport curtain for the 1931-32 show will be rung down at Carnegie Tech today as the Tartan varsity track and field squads engage Grove City's Crimson-Jerseyed athletes in a dual meet in the Tartan Bowl. The meet will get under way promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

Today's meet is Tech's eighth of the season and if a victory is recorded, and it confidently is expected that one will be, the Skibos will wind up their campaign with five triumphs against three setbacks. Pitt, Temple and Geneva were the three schools to splatter the Plaid with defeats this spring.

Tech is a strong favorite to take the Grovers today, for while Carnegie is none to formidable, what with having no dash men available and none too much balance in any department, the Grovers appear to be even less potent. Unless Capt. Tom Coulter, who attends to th hurdling and quarter-mile running for the Skibos, is used in the sprints this afternoon, the Techs will literally hand Grove City a flock of valuable points.

Eight members of the Carnegie varsity will complete their collegiate athletic careers with today's meet. Those finishing up include Murray Giles Armentrout, captain of last fall's football team, who'll attempt to shatter his own record in the hammer throw; Jess Price, two-miler; Ray Barger, pole vaulter; Ralph Merten, broad and high jumper and also a pole vaulter; Johnny Brindel and Willie Blaine, weight heavers. Johnny Lord, middle distance star, and George Johns, broad jumper.

The Tipoff

Charles Benson, recently ousted as head coach at Thiel College, ousted because of the new athletic policy at the Lutheran institution, has lined himself a new job. He'll coach at Pompton Lake High School in New Jersey and has signed a one-year contract with the New Jersey school. The school is a new one, and actual athletic competition will not be started until the fall of 1933, but Benson will supervise the organization of the athletic department and has a four-year option on the coaching job beside his one-year contract.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Huhorist Says:

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The National League finally dumped that rule against athletes conversing with spectators, so now it's perfectly proper for a player to reply, "Nice day, sir," when a customer calls him a big bum.

Nick Altrock

The rule came about when they printed a picture of a player gabbing with Al Capone. But they don't need the rule any more because a player that wants to talk to Capone now would have to be on the Atlanta Penitentiary team!

And it was no good for raising revenue, either, as Gabby Street was the only man fined $5. And if Gabby could talk $5 worth of rule violations, the rest of the league's conversationalists wouldn't amount to two bits.

WESTMORELAND TAKES LEAD

By TOM BIRKS

The fair golfers of the Westmoreland Country Club scored enough points in their postponed match with the Longue Vue representatives at St. Clair yesterday to move into first place in the standings of Section II of the women's team league.

Combined team work found the proteges of Peter O'Hara defeating Longue Vue, 6 to 2. Westmoreland now is leading the circuit by three points with St. Clair in second place. Miss Rosemary Casey, paired with Mrs. Hugh Nevin, scored the only points for Longue Vue yesterday.

At the South Hills Country Club, Bill McClelland and his fellow dentists from the South Hills held their annual tourney and dinner. C. J. Edwards won premier honors with an 81. C. H. Girt was the only other player to break 90, scoring an 89. McClelland evidently was worrying regarding that session on the Seals' program as his excursions to the traps totaled a 90.

Highland Country Club's golfers took a 98-69 lead over Shannopin in the first half of the annual two-match battle for the Grogan Cup as the rivals clashed over the Highland course yesterday.

The Highlanders overcame an early Shannopin advantage to win out by a comfortable margin. F. L. Stout, Jr., of Shannopin, defeated Jim Wyman, of Highland, in one of the feature matches of the day, 2 to 0.

S. Walter Phillips, Schenley Park champion, came within two shots of tying the course record yesterday when he scored a 62, four under par. He went out in 32 and returned in 30.

The Spring Cup tourney will be played at Allegheny Saturday and on Monday the Eben M. Byers Memorial trophy event will be held.

SEALS ADOPT THEME SONG

A surprise number, a signature or theme song, was introduced by the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in their weekly broadcast over WCAE last night.

The song, written by Miss Marian Salmon in collaboration with Paul G. Sullivan, will serve as the introductory and close-out feature of future programs. Miss Salmon, a WCAE artist, wrote the music and Sullivan the words.

Attorney Ben H. Giffen and Dr. William D. McClelland were the guest speakers, with Harry Keck serving as master of ceremonies, and Miss Salmon at the piano, and Julius Levin also participating. Bill Sutherland was the announcer.

Giffen spoke on the forthcoming American Legion national junior baseball tournament. He is chairman of the state athletic committee of the Legion. Dr. McClelland spoke on football conditions here, dating back to his high school days in 1911, and of his friendship and playing career with Dr. Jock Sutherland, the Pitt coach. He will be back on next week's program, when he will continue the football discourse and also speak on boxing and wrestling. He is a former state boxing commissioner.

SOCCER TEAMS TO MEET

Castle Shannon and the Morrow will meet Saturday in a semi-final game of the Charity Cup soccer competition at the Grove Station playgrounds.

With all teams in the City League swinging into action, and the Soho McKnights carded to clash with the Turtle Creek Community nine in the West Penn League at Greenlee Field, fans in the district will have a fine card of interesting games to become enthused over today.

The McKnights are fighting it out with the Homestead Aces for the West Penn leadership, and to cop this game it is quite possible that Manager Pat Griffin will take the mound.

DORMONT MEETS LIFERS

The City League flashes four battles that should be worth while. Dormont travels to Bellevue to meet Reliance Life, the Frank Ferris nine, one of the big surprises of the early schedule goes to Olympia Park to meet Books, and Hank Daly takes his Homewood aggregation to Stowe High School to meet the Geislers.

The North Siders, with Art Rooney playing the outfield, tangles with J. L. Thomas at Dean Field.

Outside of league competition, the House of David nine, under the leadership of one of the greatest pitchers of all time, Grover Cleveland Alexander, will meet the Homestead Grays in the second game of their series. The scene of action moves to McKeesport and the Tube City fans will see one of the strongest traveling ball clubs on the road hook up with Posey's outfit.

STEELE IN FORM

Bimmy Steele was in fine form last evening and pitched Books to a 4-0 win over Homewood in the City League. In other games, Dormont defeated J. L. Thomas, 8-3, and Geislers won over the Ferris nine, 10-4.

In the West Penn circuit, the Homestead Aces crushed the Martins, 11-2. Iroquois defeated Whitaker, 10-5, in the Greater Pittsburgh loop; the Homewood-Brushton Cards won over the Krasons, 8-1.

The Homestead Grays added two more victories to their credit last evening, defeating the Newark club in a East-West League game at Greenlee Field, 17 to 5, and then going to Forbes Field to score over the House of David club under the lights, 8 to 5.

Paul Waner Passes 400 Mark in Batting

Getting four hits in five trips to the plate against the Cincinnati Reds in Cincinnati yesterday, Paul Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who is leading the National League in batting, jumped into the .400 class.

Waner's four singles, made in his first four appearances at bat, boosted his average to .408.

GOB TO RETIRE, BRITT SAYS

"Win or lose, this will be Sharkey's last fight."

That's what Willus Britt, veteran manager of boxers, says of the forthcoming Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey heavyweight championship battle, scheduled for June 1 in Madison Square Garden's new outdoor arena in Long Island City.

Jack Sharkey

"Sharkey is fed up on the fight game and is ready to drop out," says Britt, who is topping over here nursing a cold en route from St. Louis to Schmeling's training camp. He came here to see his friend, Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, in action against Battling Gizzy at the Meyers Bowl, Monday night.

Britt also said he would not be surprised to see another postponement of the big battle, in view of the failure of the fans to become exercised over it up to this point. He picks Schmeling to win when the big fellows do clash.

"Max is a sure pop," he says, "He's a thoroughbred over the route, whereas Sharkey is a sprinter, who will be unable to keep up the pace."

Benny Bass Wins Over Dublinsky

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—(AP.)—Benny Bass, former featherweight and junior-lightweight king, won a snappy 10-round decision here last night over Harry Dublinsky, Chicago lightweight, to open the outdoor boxing season.

Warned by the State Athletic Commission that if he committed a foul he would be barred permanently, Bass was careful with his blows, but twice drew a warning from the referee. Bass won the fight after the eighth round, when several of his swings found their mark and he virtually closed one of Dublinsky's eyes with a left hook.

Two Track Meets On Program Today

Two track and field meets are scheduled for high school and grade school athletes this afternoon.

The finals of the novice championships of the city high schools will be staged at the Schenley Oval today, starting at 3:30.

LACOSTE MATCH DEFERRED

AUTEUIL, France, May 26 (AP.)—Rain today caused postponement until Saturday of Rene Lacoste's first singles match in the French tennis championships. Lacoste, former Davis Cup star, is returning to the courts after an absence of two years. His match was to have been the feature of the first round of singles play.

Play proceeded in other divisions with Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall and Henri Cochet moving into the quarter-finals of mixed doubles with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Hilda Krahwinkel and Von Cram, of Germany.

A. A. U. Meet Carded To Be Held Monday

The annual track and field championships will be staged at Kennywood Park Decoration Day, with contestants from all sections of Western Pennsylvania entered.

Saturday is the last day for the filing of entries with John T. Taylor, Room 35, Vandergrift Building.

Among the latest to enroll in the meet is Miss Vernetta Eckenrode, of Patton, Pa. Miss Eckenrode, holder of the 220-yard dash crown, will defend her title in this event.

BRAVES GET FORD

BOSTON, May 26.—(AP.)—Horace Ford, veteran National League infielder, has been signed by the Boston Braves. The somersault player, who got his major league start with the Braves, has seen service with Philadelphia Nationals, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and the St. Louis Cardinals. He was released from the latter club several weeks ago. Manager Bill McKechnie will use Ford as a utility infielder.

ART DAHL QUITS

'KEEPSIE RACE DRAW MADE

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—With the lone exception of Wisconsin, the varsity, junior varsity and freshman fleets of the Poughkeepsie regulars were entered and drew positions today for the annual regatta on the Hudson, June 20.

Twenty-two crews in the three races, numerically the same as last year, lined up for the draw. Wisconsin withdrew because of desire to concentrate on the 2,000 meters Olympic trials in July at Worcester, rather than the four-mile varsity battle on the Hudson.

The lanes for each race and starting times, all eastern daylight, follow:

Varsity, 7:15 p. m.—1, Syracuse; 2, California; 3, Washington; 4, M. I. T.; 5, Cornell; 6, Navy; 7, Columbia; 8, Pennsylvania.

Junior varsity, 6:15 p. m.—1, Syracuse; 2, Cornell; 3, Navy; 4, M. I. T.; 5, California; 6, Columbia.

Freshman, 5:15 p. m.—1, California; 2, M. I. T.; 3, Navy; 4, Syracuse; 5, Cornell; 6, Washington; 7, Columbia; 8, Pennsylvania.

Racing Mechanic Killed in Smash

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26.—(AP.)—Harry Cox, 28, of Indianapolis, mechanic riding with Benny Benefield, 25, of Indianapolis, was killed late yesterday when the car in which they were practicing for the 500-mile race here Monday, lost a wheel in the first turn, plunged over the outer wall and struck a tree.

Both men were thrown clear of the racer. Cox apparently was killed immediately. Benefield was said at a hospital to have suffered lacerations, but not to have been severely hurt.

ARIE LEADS IN SHOOT

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., May 26.—(AP.)—Mark Arie, Champaign, Ill., Unite States amateur trapshooting champion, is showing the way in the Kentucky-Tennessee shoot in progress here. He broke 197 targets out of 200 Tuesday, and 199 out of 200 yesterday.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

List Loses Ground — Local List Narrow

MARKET BOWS UNDER STEADY SELLING

Tobaccos, Utilities, Foods, Rails Are Sold Heavily; Market Suspends 'Short'

NEW YORK, May 26—(AP)—The punch-weary stock market lost more ground today under a steady drizzle of selling orders which sent a wide list of leading stocks down from fractions to 3 points or more.

Stocks of companies which have done especially well during the past two years were offered quite freely, holders apparently taking advantage of their better marketability to raise cash at relatively less sacrifice. The tobacco issues were conspicuous in this group, extreme losses of 2 to 4 points occurring in American Tobacco Liggett & Myers and R. J. Reynolds issues. In four transactions a total of 2b,000 shares of Reynolds "B" stock changed hands, this liquidation presumably being to protect marginal accounts. Food stocks were also offered in fairly large volume at losses of 1 to over 2 points in Borden, National Biscuit, General Foods and Corn Products. The Senate's approval of a tax on soft drinks was followed by a flurry of selling in Coca Cola and other issues figuring in that classification.

Railroad stocks also bowed to the combination of recent unfavorable reports on earnings and, in a measure, to discussions over refinancing a $20,727,750 St. Louis Southwestern bond issue maturing June 1. The specter of another possible receivership in the railroad field caused some misgivings, although the market showed no signs of surprise or hysteria. Public utilities were under pressure.

The New York Stock Exchange's action in suspending a private trader again called attention to efforts of that institution to keep short selling under control. The exchange took its disciplinary action under a constitutional clause inserted in 1905 and never used before today, to punish a member held guilty of violating a prohibition against the "purchase or sale of securities for purposes of unsetting the equilibrium of the market."

NEW YORK, May 26.—(AP.)—Collateral held by William Fox against a note for $2,300,000 of General Theaters Equipment, Inc., has been sold at auction for $450,000. The note was part of the consideration paid to Mr. Fox in April, 1930, for his controlling interest in the Fox Film Corporation, represented by 151,000 shares of Fox class "B" stock.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Police Commissioner Tries Physical Reconstruction Of Mystery Case

CHAPTER XLIII.

Thatcher Colt had arranged a singular and discordant convocation. In the living room of the penthouse were gathered all those persons most concerned in the final solution of the two murder cases.

It gave me an odd feeling, just to see these various characters assembled under one roof. Seated calmly in the most comfortable chair in the room, with its ecru linen walls of uneven weave, was Viscount Rowland, the end of a cigaret making a red glow in the mass of white hairs surrounding his mouth. Beside him, her back to the nun's veiling of a terrace window, was Mrs. Carewe. She had taken the most uncomfortable chair in the room. Dressed in black silk with a fringed shawl over her shoulders, the mother whispered to the debonair old attorney. It was quite evident that Mrs. Carewe looked to Vincent Rowland for reassurance and advice, and that the dapper old attorney was prepared to play the role of the friend of the family. Mrs. Carewe paid no attention at all to Dorothy Lox, who sat on the other side of her.

Posing theatrically in front of the fireplace, as if taking his position there for the rise of the second-act curtain, was Guy Everett. Since our last interview with the actor, he had been carefully attended by barbers, and one felt, by his masseur. The man exuded that well-rubbed feeling. His mustache tips were exquisitely waxed, his cheeks flushed, but his eyes were dulled with the loss of sleep and too many highballs. Everett, too, was smoking a cigaret.

A TENSE ASSEMBLAGE

On a divan left from the fireplace sat Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quires. Husband and wife were close to each other, exchanging no words but staring into space, as if foreseeing an inevitable outcome. Beside them sat one I had almost forgotten—the plump and pitiful Mrs. Hugh Baldwin.

Two others were in the room—Eunice and Chung. The maid was in a low chair in a dark corner, almost effaced by shadows. But the Chinaman, resplendent in a robe of violet silk, corded with gold, stood defiantly forth. His place was under a bracket of lamps where I had once before observed him—and the glow of light fell on his monstrous and misshapen head, always turned a little to one side. Chung was not grinning now, and yet I seemed to detect a hint of a smile tugging restlessly at a corner of his wide lips. His hands at his sides, Chung stood there, respectful and quiet, a man to be reckoned with.

In our party there were four—Thatcher Colt, Dougherty, Flynn and myself. We walked into this tense assemblage, in utter silence. Chung stepped forward to take our wraps, but Thatcher Colt motioned him off. We put our things away in a closet, and then, as Thatcher Colt paced forward toward the center of the room, the rest of us grouped ourselves, as the chief had requested, near the door. All other doors and windows were guarded by bluecoats.

A RECONSTRUCTION

"I will not detain you long," promised the Commissioner, looking around him quietly. "The police have come to the point where we believe the two murders in which we are all interested can be solved. I have asked you all to meet with me here because you are all concerned in that solution. There are one or two points that I want to clear up, and to do that I wish to attempt a physical reconstruction of the crime."

Here the Commissioner turned to Eunice, cowering in the far corner.

"Where were you at about 12:15 o'clock last night when Christine Quires reached home?" he asked.

"Where I told you—in my own room," answered the maid, sulky with alarm.

"Please go there now," requested Colt, and waited, while Eunice hastened with short quick steps across the room, through the rear door and into her own chamber.

"And Chung," continued Colt, "you said that you were reading the life story of a movie star—in the kitchen."

"You are right, Mr. Commissioner. I was reading in the third chapter of Book II in the life of Clara Bow—and I was in the kitchen."

"Please go there now," requested Colt.

TO RECREATE ACTIONS

As the butler left, the Commissioner now turned to Mrs. Carewe.

"And you," he added, "were reading from your favorite book in your own room. Correct?"

"Yes, Mr. Colt."

Synopsis

Lola Carewe and Christine Quires are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scorpions were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, an actor. Lola had blackmailed him. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk, named Basil Boucher, loved Lola. Edward Quires, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead—from a scorpion bite! In Baldwin's desk Colt finds a statement in which the doctor says he accidentally poisoned Gaylord Gifford, Lola's husband. Lola's knowledge of this placed Baldwin in her power. She forced him to supply narcotics which she used to victimize her friends and later blackmail them. The statement says Vincent Rowland, aged attorney, was behind Lola's activities. Because of the lack of evidence against Rowland, Colt objects to his immediate arrest. A report from France says that Basil Boucher drowned himself after stealing money to buy Lola a ruby. Christine's brother, Edgar Quires, unaware of her death, is indignant when taken before Colt. After learning of the tragedy he accuses Everett. Colt visits the Carewe home, confident that he will solve the mystery before he leaves.

Now Go On

Anticipating his request, the mother rose, cast a final glance of understanding toward Vincent Rowland, and went at once into her own room. Dorothy Lox went with her.

Thatcher Colt now turned directly to Dougherty, Flynn and myself.

"Now, gentlemen," he continued, "we shall first attempt to recreate the movements of Christine Quires from the time that she said goodnight to Mr. Guy Everett until we found her body. In doing this, I must ask you to keep one fact clearly in mind—that through the medical examiner's evidence we know that Christine was killed several hours before Lola Carewe, although her body was the second to be found."

"Rigor mortis had set in," Dougherty supplemented.

"Exactly. Now mark what happened. Christine said goodnight to Mr. Everett in the lobby downstairs. She then got into the elevator and rode up to the 22nd floor—the one below this."

"Pardon me," interrupted Dougherty. "Was there anyone on duty in the lobby, besides Lowell Courtleigh, the elevator boy who brought Christine upstairs?"

"No one. The lobby was deserted."

"I see," rumbled Dougherty. "But is there only one elevator in the building?"

"There are several."

"Hmpf!" sniffed Dougherty, but relapsed into a silence I knew was wholly temporary. Guy Everett cast his half-smoked cigaret into the embers of the fireplace and at once groped for a fresh one.

OUTLINES MOVEMENTS

"Christine, if we are to believe the elevator boy, left his car on the floor under this," resumed Thatcher Colt. "He closed the door and went downstairs. At least, that is his story. We have considered the possibility of his having attacked Christine. But the theory seems too far-fetched for sober consideration. For one thing, we have the testimony of several groups of tenants in this building who furnish him with such an alibi, that only a margin of two or three scattered minutes remain for him to kill Christine, hide the body, and eventually to spirit the remains into a room in this carefully guarded apartment."

"You can count out the elevator boy," growled Flynn. "I had a long session with him and I know what I am talking about."

"I will not detain you long," promised Colt.

"Accepting his alibi, then," continued Thatcher Colt, "we have Christine Quires outside of the elevator door, on the twenty-second floor of this building. From that moment on, her movements are a mystery. She is not to be seen again, except by her murderer, until we find her body."

"What, then, could have happened?"

"Let us imagine that we can follow her footsteps. She is not feeling well. She has left her New Year's Eve party because of illness. She has, let us say, but one idea—to get to bed. So, feeling very ill, she traverses the long corridor downstairs. She mounts the twisting iron staircase that leads to the entrance door. From her purse she takes a key. She opens the door and enters this room.

"She sees no one. Lola is out. Mrs. Carewe is in her room, and the door is closed. The servants are in their quarters. She feels cold. She goes over to the fireplace. She puts her purse, wet from only a few moment's exposure on the sidewalk, on the mantel where it remains unnoticed until I picked it up last night. Christine is feeling very ill now. The report of the medical examiner shows that her stomach had been upset by indigestion."

"Recently eaten food?" queried Dougherty.

"Within an hour."

"Then it was the food that she ate at the Lion's Paw?"

"Undoubtedly!"

Lumberingly, Dougherty turned and looked again long and darkly at Guy Everett.

"Did you have anything to eat at that night club?" he barked.

"A little," answered Guy Everett, manifestly very ill at ease.

"Did you get sick, too?"

"I did not!"

"Did you have the same stuff that the girl did?"

"I believe I did. Yes."

"Hmpf! Thought that one over, didn't you? Then you realized we could check on you out there and find out exactly what you ordered. Learned a lesson from that Motor Parkway business, didn't you? Say, listen, Everett—"

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Elation Is Short-Lived

I felt ashamed of the irritation which unreasonably seized me at Philip Veritzen's statement that he wished me to "humor him" about something most important.

He was justified in asking some favor of me, I told myself, for he really had been graceful and gracious in his capitulation to my ultimatum that I would not go into New York and work with him upon the casting and rehearsal of my play until after school opened. True, I had the heady conviction that in reality his yielding had not been from any consideration of me, but because of his fear that I might carry out the threat I had made to take my play to some other producer if he refused to accept it on account of our disagreement over the date of my going to New York.

What in the world did he mean? I asked myself crossly. What was this thing "so important" to him that he wished to be "humored" about it?

I remembered more than one occasion during the months that I had spent as historical consultant with the great Veritzen organization when some author of one of his productions had ventured to run counter to the great man's ideas. No matter how adroitly the thing was attempted, no matter how influential the person who attempted it, the end of the affair always saw Philip Veritzen's point of view triumphant, and the other man in the unfortunate predicament of the dog with a tin can tied to his tail.

THINKS OF MARY

Was that what he meant to do in my case? Had his apparent acquiescence meant that behind those keen eyes was hatching a scheme which would bring me into the city for work upon my play at the time he had named instead of that which I had insisted was the only one I could consider?

Or—did his odd request that I "humor" him in something "most important" to him mean that he wanted to enlist my aid in the separation of Noel from Mary, which he had admitted was his secret plan despite the promise he had given me at that memorable Christmas time of last year that he would no longer stand in the way of their betrothal?

"I shall be very glad to do anything within my power for you," I said. "With that proviso, I should be glad to promise to 'humor' you in any way I can."

"It is entirely within your power," he answered. "I should not have asked you if you had agreed to go to the city next Tuesday, for I should have known that you would not have a minute to spare for anything outside your play. But now that you have finished the play, and I have approved it so fully that no changes will have to be made in it before it is put into rehearsal, your time will be more or less your own, will it not?"

"As far as the time of a wife, a mother, and the chatelaine of a house ever is her own—yes," I replied smiling.

AN ODD REQUEST

"I know," Mr. Veritzen said, with a sympathetic, soothing intonation in his rich voice. "You are the eighth wonder of the world in the marvelous manner in which you attend to so many details, and neglect none. You may not have known it, but I made a very thorough study of your personality in those days of our professional association which have left with me one of the tenderest, the most beautiful memories of all my life."

So consummate an actor was he, so marvelous was his technique, that though I was sure he did not mean a word of what he was saying, yet I would have defied any woman in that moment to doubt the fact that here was a royal lover eating his heart out in silence for what "could never be."

"I want you to know," he went on, "that I realize how selfish and presumptuous I am to ask you this favor, but I do need your kind indulgence."

"You are neither selfish nor presumptuous," I said warmly and sincerely. "Please do not think I am unwilling to serve you. I am simply reminding you of the limitations there are on my time. Please tell me what it is you wish of me."

His face cleared and he smiled gratefully at me.

"It is very simple," he said. "I simply want you to do something socially for Mrs. Arlen and her daughter. Invite them to dinner. Give a tea for them. Any one of the things your generous heart and resourceful brain can conceive."

While I appreciate the honor of leading this movement, and would not do anything intentionally to offend these good people, I must also take care not to annoy the clothing business, which is one of our key industries, I think if I was a clothing merchant and a prominent Congressman needed a two pants suit I would think twice before I would let him unconsciously become the idol of a lot of the Nudist radicals. Test of Unselfishness

Heavy Sacrifices Will Have to Be Made If the State Is To Carry Through a Relief Program.

Gov. Pinchot has at last broken his long silence concerning plans for another special session of the Legislature to furnish additional relief for the unemployed.

He says he is not only willing but eager to call another extra session, but must first be assured that it will provide relief. No reasonable person will object to his demand for such assurance. The first extra session proved more or less of a fiasco because conflicting political elements refused to co-operate. The Governor is right in seeking to avoid another such fiasco. Sessions of the Legislature cost the taxpayers much money.

No better way of assuring a harmonious session can be found than that the Governor is following in calling political, business and welfare leaders from all parts of Pennsylvania into conference at Harrisburg to devise a program. After the advice of these groups has been obtained it will be up to the Legislature's leaders to adopt a plan and secure pledges of support from a majority of the members. With this accomplished the Legislature will be able to transact the business in a few days and adjourn, thus saving the Commonwealth from the expense of a long session.

The situation is going to be a test of the unselfishness of many people. It is self-evident that funds cannot be raised for relief without imposing new taxes. The state's revenues are insufficient to cover the appropriations made at the last regular session of the Legislature.

New taxes are going to hurt. Those who feel them most keenly will be tempted to cry out in protest, to oppose them and obstruct the levy. It is to be hoped that the tax burden can be evenly distributed, so that the burden will fall no more heavily on one person than on another. The probability is, however, that certain interests will have to make heavy sacrifices.

Unselfishness is also being put to the test in the situation that has developed out of the falling off in the state's revenues. In accordance with a ruling by Attorney General William A. Schnader, about one-fourth is being trimmed from the state's biennial appropriations to hospitals, colleges, welfare institutions, mother's assistance funds and other beneficiaries of the Commonwealth's bounty. It is deplorable, of course. Some of the institutions will suffer severely as a result of the reduction in the gifts they were anticipating. But they are not justified in the expressions of bitterness that some are voicing.

Each feels that its need is superior to the need of all others. If this spirit is not quelled, the relief program will suffer.

An unselfish viewpoint is a prime necessity. The greatest good for the greatest number should be the objective.

The Paramount Need

Return of the Unemployed to Work Is Indispensable to the Restoration of Prosperity.

Business will necessarily continue distinctly subnormal until progress has been made in returning the unemployed to self supporting jobs.

In the present emergency, there has been no effective substitute for connecting the jobless with useful work.

Since the early stages of the depression the Hearst newspapers have steadily urged a prosperity loan to enable government to offer jobs in the emergency while private business defaults.

Meantime, private employers should be encouraged to help along the process of economic recuperation by adding employes to their payrolls.

In this connection, the advance of $27,500,000 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Pennsylvania Railroad to continue its job creating, electrification work on its line between New York and Washington is unquestionably the most socially useful loan it has made.

It contributes directly toward economic rehabilitation, whereas earlier loans to railroads for the purpose of bailing out private bankers, holding questionable assets, were of a different caliber.

At this juncture, neither the government nor its instrumentalities should dissipate resources on operations not calculated to aid in the paramount need of GETTING PERSONS ABLE AND WILLING TO WORK BACK ON THE JOB.

Significant Concession

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company Admits a Bus Ride Need Not Be High-Priced.

In establishing bus service, for the price of a street car ride, with transfer privileges, between Brighton road and Davis avenue, North Side, and Chartiers avenue and Island avenue, McKees Rocks, by way of the McKees Rocks-North Side Bridge, the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, a subsidiary of the Philadelphia Company, has made a significant concession.

The company has admitted that bus service need not be high-priced.

In conceding this it has paved the way for reduction of the 25-cent fare it charges for transportation on its other lines.

Now that a passenger is permitted to ride several miles on the company's North Side-McKees Rocks line for a dime or a street car token, it is more unjust than ever that it should continue to charge a quarter for a ride of as little as a block on its East End line.

A Useful Citizen Gone

Dr. Edward Rynearson Had Much To Do With the Education of Two Generations of Pittsburghers

Pittsburgh has lost a useful citizen in Dr. Edward Rynearson, director of vocational guidance in the public schools, who died in Mercy Hospital yesterday from a heart attack.

Dr. Rynearson had been connected with the public schools for 36 years. He had much to do with the education of two generations of Pittsburghers, and doubtless the grandchildren of some of his old pupils in the Central High School, where he taught biology in the late nineties, have also felt the influence of his work.

Dr. Rynearson was a hardworking and efficient schoolmaster who had the none too common faculty of making his pupils feel that he was their friend.

Love's Crossed Wires

In the love-game, most women are looking for devotion—most men for diversion. And that's how the wires get crossed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 26.—The honk-tonk tempo of that sybaritic stretch of West Forty-second street, stretching from Times Square to Eighth avenue, has given what was once the heart of the Rialto a street carnival glitter. It sways and thunders with the cry of the barker and the yank of the puller-in.

Along the strip is perhaps New York's best known playhouse, the New Amsterdam, long home of the Follies. West Forty-second street's decadence set in about eight years ago when a Flea Circus combined with a museum of "strange people" lodged there and became the rotting speck in the apple barrel.

Cheap-john shops and take-joints seeped in. The famous Murray's, with revolving dance floor, was supplanted by one-armed beaneries. Sedate stores became auction rooms with window demonstrations and a pavement ballyhoo. Even a medicine show tom-tommed a tape worm destroyer.

The Republic, housing the longest run in history, "Abie's Irish Rose," went cheaply burlesque and featured "strip acts." Two other theaters of erstwhile respectability took a similar nose dive. A playhouse where Marlowe starred specialized in thrillers with "Eliza-crossing-the-ice" music.

The New Amsterdam, George White's Appollo, the Selwyn, and one or two others continue with class attractions, but the rest cater to vulgarians. Rents have sagged and respectable producers are searching for new locations. Property owners are now trying to lock their stables after the horses are gone.

After midnight furtives hawk obscene postcards from doorways. Ladies stop at windows in expectant waits. Columbus Circle dope sellers have a new pasture. And night hawks of the taxis whisper addresses of houses-of-call. As Eddie, the Times Square newsie, put it: "They've certainly loused up a good block."

Irving Berlin's establishment, over old Churchill's, was about the only one left when the tunemakers trekked to Hollywood. It is said that only three have amassed permanent fortunes out of song writing—Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern and Duddy De Sylva. For the remainder, it was come easy, go easy.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Why do girls prefer careers to marriage?

Why do brides desert the home, go back to the job?

BECAUSE MARRIED WOMEN KNOCK MARRIAGE. BECAUSE WIVES, THEMSELVES, GIVE THE HOME A BLACK EYE.

That's E. W. S's answer to the question, "WHICH MEANS MOST TO THE MODERN WOMAN—MARRIAGE OR A CAREER?" And then she gives the story which lies behind that answer. It may startle you. It will certainly make you think.

A motherless girl, drudging through childhood on a farm, scrambling together an education out of scraps of opportunity; then, with her first job, release from that ugly slavery. A taste of freedom. A grasp at beauty. It was Paradise. How she worked, sacrificed, battled to get ahead.

Reading her letter, a million other girls would remember the ache and terror of their own first battles, share her thrill when she at last achieved a really big job.

"How I loved it!" she cries. "That big office; the clicking typewriters; the noise of the adding machines, and every now and then the Big Boss hurrying through, and the tingling stir of excitement as we whisper, 'Wonder what's wrong?'"

A passionately treasured life of work, and freedom, and unfolding adventure. What it must have meant to her! Yet it could not hold her when The Man came.

"Five years ago," she writes, "but I remember it as if it was yesterday. Those magic moonlight nights when we swam or were together on the sand, talking, dreaming—hours of pure, undiluted happiness.

"So we were married. I had chosen marriage, instead of a career. And now I suppose the ending should be, 'So they lived happily ever after.' But we didn't.

"WE DIDN'T STAY HAPPY BECAUSE I LET THE LIES, AND WHINES, AND SNEERS OF OTHER WIVES SPOIL MY LOVE, WEAKEN MY COURAGE, WRECK MY HOME."

For a few months after marriage she worked, until the home was paid for. Then, when she knew the baby was coming, she gladly gave up her job, and then the trouble started.

"All the other mothers I knew began to wail, 'Why on earth did you leave such a nice job to have a baby? Think of what it will cost. You'll never have any more fun. You won't be able to get any new dresses any more, and you'll have to stay at home and lose your shape and complexion. And everyone knows that no man is faithful when he's got a tired, homely wife and a squally baby at home.'

"So it didn't take me long to decide that I was a fool to give up my job and my youth for all the misery and suffering of having a child, and I, too, became peevish, discontented. I raved, cried, whined and moaned, and finally, when the baby was three months old, I left my husband and went home. Today—bitter, cynical, all because I let those selfish, silly, loafing wives poison my mind.

"Yes, I see it now, when it's too late. But that won't bring my husband back. I've killed his faith forever, and broken my own heart, for now I know I loved him better than anything on earth.

"Oh, why do women knock their own game? Why do they sneer at the beauty of love, just because it means a little work and sacrifice?

"Why do they tell a young girl all about the suffering, and never tell her of the deep, singing peace she will know when she holds her baby in her arms, and of the pride she can feel working beside her husband?

"Why, oh why, are married women traitors?"

"EVELYN."

Why, indeed! I'm handing it on to them, Evelyn. Perhaps they'll answer for themselves.

Bankers' Opportunity

They Can Stimulate Business by Greater Liberality In Extending Credit.

By JULIUS G. BERENS,
Financial Editor, New York American.

OF ALL non-governmental interests, the bankers alone hold the power to stem the riot of deflation and depression.

By a policy of greater liberality in extending worthy and much-needed credit, the bankers could stimulate business.

Once it becomes evident that the bankers have overcome their timidity and fright, all sections of the community would become confident.

Confidence stirs trade activity.

Before long, the industrial wheel again would be humming.

Orders would begin to increase.

Employers would find it necessary to expand their payrolls.

Employed workers would loosen up their purse-strings, for then those already employed would feel more secure.

The cycle of business would turn upward.

But the bankers still hesitate in this hour of distress.

The Federal Reserve executives are doing everything possible to encourage the bankers to a more lenient lending policy.

This need not be at any sacrifice whatever of banking principles, nor at the sacrifice of safety.

Many worthy businesses are suffering a slow death because of lack of credit to which, by all reasonable measuring-rods, they are fully entitled.

The bankers have various means by which to make their contribution toward recovery.

They could, for example, more aggressively enter the buying side of the bond market.

This would have the effect of stabilizing this vital market, thereby ending the distress which affects all sections of our economy.

A strong bond market would permit the financing of worthy new enterprises, of supporting existing businesses in need of new financing.

The bankers, of course, would expand their direct loans to worthy customers.

The major danger now threatening is not the condition of affairs at the moment.

It is the frightful hesitancy, the indecision, apparent in banking quarters.

Bankers hesitate now when the economic structure is far more conducive to justifiable stimulation than at any time in years.

Will the bankers be just as blind now as they were in 1929?

Surely, the banking fraternity contains men of vision, faith, and appreciation of the opportunity now presented.

RUNAWAYS

By Winifred Black

The two little girls down the street have run away. One of the girls is a little, red-headed firebrand, with freckles and dancing, laughing, scolding, weeping, beseeching, demanding eyes.

She's going to have a figure some day, that little Red Head, and when she does, things are going to be very busy—for her and for every one who's interested in her. She's quick-witted and quick-tempered, and I'm afraid she has rather a goodish opinion of herself, even if she has been teased about her red hair and her freckles ever since she learned to walk.

The other little girl has drab hair, a drab skin, drab eyes and a snub nose, and not even the promise of any sort of a figure—never no time, nowhere.

Drabbie is crazy about Red Head.

She follows Red Head around like a faithful dog.

When Red Head laughs, Drabbie laughs.

When Red Head frowns, Drabbie scowls.

So when Red Head decided that home was no place for a girl like her, and started out to make her own place in the world, Drabbie went along. And now their two poor mothers are almost crazy.

Both fathers pretend they think it is good riddance, but one of them bit the stem of his pipe so hard that he broke it the other day, and the other hasn't eaten a decent bite for the last 24 hours.

I wonder how long it is going to take those two poor silly little things to find out that there's only one place in the world where they can be safe and comfortable—and that place is home.

I knew a red-headed little girl once a long, long time ago. Her mother died and she was lonely. She missed the long evenings on the dusky porch, with the yellow primroses popping into perfumed bloom, the old dog at her feet on the steps and mother telling the most beautiful fairy tales you ever heard. Much better than the ones in the books, the fairy tales were, when mother told them.

Mother always knew exactly what Cinderella wore to the ball, and what size the silver slipper was when she lost it; and she told the color of the prince's eyes, and how his hair waved back from his forehead, and the way he leaned forward in the saddle when he stopped to pick up Cinderella and ride away with her.

And when it came to Aladdin's cave, mother made you see it in all its glory and magnificence. And this little red-headed girl found the world a dull place when there were no more fairy tales.

Her sisters were busy with their own affairs, but there was a woman who lived up on top of the hill who could tell tales, too. Not as well as mother, of course, but she paid a good deal of attention to Little Red Head, and was sorry for her because she had to go to school and study arithmetic. The idea! A bright girl like her fussing over little things like that.

So this little Red Head made up her mind she'd run away and go and live at the house on the hill, and be told how bright she was, and how her hair shone in the sun and everything; and one evening, just as the crickets began to chirp and the tall yellow primroses said "Pop" in the garden, this little Red Head did run away.

She stayed all night in the house on the hill. Breakfast wasn't very good. Somebody had burned the oatmeal, and there was no fruit or hot biscuits, and the wonderful woman was a little cross when Red Head left her oatmeal in the dish.

At noon the woman said, "Red Head, I'm going to town today. Feed the dog and cat, will you? And don't go out of the house." And away she went, and Red Head wished she was home again.

In the evening the wonder woman came home, tired and cross, and said, "What! No supper ready?" And Red Head couldn't think what she meant, but she wished she was at home.

That night when the moon was shining bright, and Red Head knew just how the primroses would be smelling in the garden, she ran down the hill and went home. Nobody was surprised to see her. They just asked her how the wonder was, and Red Head snuggled up by the old dog and went to sleep, hearing somebody singing "In the Gloaming" inside the house. And she never ran away again.

I hope the two new little runaways, Red Head and Drabbie, will get back home safe. I don't believe they'll run away again.
